The Demand for Gold Ceasing-lated Press Leased-wire Service. Owing to the rise of the rates of exchange, the demand for gold is ceasing. The fact that the balance of trade is against the United States makes American gold exports more lively than imports. Discount rates here, therefore, exhibit weakness. Nothing is yet settled in regard to the Spanish or Chinese loans. It is probable that the latter loan will be 55,000,000, secured on the current duty and at the cured on the customs duty and at the treaty ports.

The stock market has not yet fully recovered from the recent scars, but since the settlement, which was gotten over without trouble, the markets have shown a distinctly stronger tone. Foreign securities, even Russian and Turkish, were all better, while Chinese securities recovered from their temporary relaps, when it was recognized that the interest on the bonds is not dependent on the imperial treasury, but on the revenue of treaty ports. Home railway securities during the week were easier. All investment stocks suffered more during the scare than spec ulative securities.

ulative securities.

Improvement in American railway securities is a long time coming. Purchases of these securities were on the most moderate scale, while bear selling tended to depress the market. Louisville and Nashville was down 2 points; American Mortgage, 1%; Erie seconds, 1%, and Reading firsts, 14. All the others showed fractional declines. Grand Trunk and Canada were improved on the week. Canadian Pacific fell sharply on the expected new issue of preferred stock. South American securities were strong.

QUANTICO ROBBERY.

No Clew to the Identity of the Perpetrators.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.-Not a shado of a tangible clew to the identity of the men who accomplished the notable feat of train-brigandage in Virginia on Friday night has yet come to light. The little town of Quantico, which consists of hit? a dozen houses, almost isolated from civil-ization, is over-run with detectives.

There are almost as many theories affoat as there are detectives, but the only points on which the theories are practically harmonious are that the robbery was a carefully-planned one and executed by experienced professionals, and that the men are now probably far distant from their field of operations. The man arrested on suspicion last night will merely be arraigned in the Police Court on a charge of varin the Police Court on a charge of var rancy, as no evidence has appeared agains him.

Frightful Collision of Two Trains.

An East Louisiana Engineer Responsible.

He Drives His Engine into a Louisville and Nashville Excursion Train.

A Crowded Coach Thrown into the Ditch— One Passenger Fatally Hurt and a Score of Per-sons Badly Injured.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 14. - Engineer of the East Louisiana road is re ponsible for a frightful accident that occurred this morning at the crossing of the Louisville and Nashville, and the Northeastern Railway, about two miles from where the Louisville and Nashville road leaves Elysian Fields street; an accident that will in all probability result in a least one fatality, while a score of passen-gers on the Louisville and Nashville received severe injuries.

The Louisville and Nashville "across the lake" excursion-train, consisting of eight paches well loaded with pleasure-seekers, large portion of them being wor children, pulled out on time. As the train approached the crossing of the Northeast ern tracks, Engineer Hanley brought hi train to a stop and whistled, as the law requires. He then gave the signal to go ahead, and proceeded across the track of

The passengers of the East Louislana train were uninjured except from the shock. Not so with the coast excursion, however. Just before the iron roadster struck the coach several of the passengers saw it coming, and a panie ensued. There was a wild rish to escape from the downed coach, but hefore the passengers could reach the platforms the approaching engine had struck and the coach with its living freight was hurled from the tracks into the ditch.

Women and children shrieked in their terror, while they fought their way blindly for some escape from the coach. Seats were torn up and hustled in every direction by the force of the collision, and after the first wild panic had subsided, there were heard piteous moans from different quarters of the wreck telling of painful injuries. Willing hands went to work, and within a short time the wounded had been taken from the coach and made as comfortable as possible. The greatest as comfortable as possible. NAVAL DOCKS.

Improvements Recommended Commodore Matthews.

Associated Press Leased-wire Servica.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—The annual report of Commodore E. O. Matthews to the Secretary of the Navy upon naval-yard docks estimates the expenditures for the next fiscal year at $1,861,295, which is a reduction of the estimates submitted by the commandants of the yards of $5,646,-$20. The heaviest cut in these estimates is the item of improvements, which is reduced from $6,221,712 to $1,044,803. The duced from $6,221,712 to $1,044,803. The team for general maintenance is cut $157,000, and that for repairs $300,000.

The leading features of the report is the suggestion by the chief of the urgent need of at least four new drydocks to be located at League Island, Pa., Boston, Norfolk and Mare Island, Cal. The principal improvements recommended at the different yards are as follows:

At Boston, rebuilding wharf No. 4: a

At Boston, rebuilding wharf No. 4; a modern drydock there is suggested, but no modern drydock there is augusticat, but no estimate is given. League Island process some dredging; extension of the quay. needs some dredging; extension of the quay walls and an artesian well. A new dry-dock here is also suggested, but not esti-mated for. At Washington, the extension of the sea wall, railroad tracks and elec-conversion of the old museum into officers' quarters, and a new roundhouse are recommended. At Norfolk, repairs to the dock; a storeshed and repair shop, a lighter and derrick, extension of sea walls and replacement of old docks. A new drydock is also suggested.

Mare Island needs a strong quay wall;

grading and paving; widening the en-trance of the stone dock; a new caisson; steam capstans; new railroad scales and improvement of the coppersmiths' shop. A new dock is also strongly urged here. as there will be no dock nearer than Port Orchard, where there are no facilities for repairs, large enough to take the new bat repairs, large enough to take the new bat-tleships of our navy.

Port Royal, S. C., needs roadways; grad-ing, drainage, hydrants, cisterns, fences, and a workshop. More land is also needed. At Key West, Fla., mors land is needed, as well as an iron coal wharf. At Algera, La., work should be begun in preparation for a new dock. For Puget Sound, Wash., dredging, offices, quarters for men and ofdredging, offices, quarters for men and of-ficers are recommended, and eventually shops and wharves will be needed, but no estimate is given.

In describing the work done during the past year, Commodore Matthews says that it has been only by the utmost eco of these yards have been made to hol out. The other half at Port Royal is reout. The other half at Port Royal is re-ported to be nearly complete. Strains have caused the low crossbars to curve in, but the contractor is about to remedy this. The old St. Asapeth track was a halfmile affair, owned by some Virginia gentieman, and used as a speed-way for trouters. A new track is built outside of this, and is three-quarters of a mile in to see the horses from start to finish.

The grandstand is entirely new, and is one of the handsomest in the metropolitan district. It will seat 2800 people.

The purses will be from $500 to $1000. On the opening day there will be six races, at distances ranging from five furiongs to one mile and a sixteenth, with added money amounting to $2500. Secretary Mointyre is endeavoring to arrange a race between Banquet, Domino, Henry of Navarre, Clifford and Rubicon, three out of five, to start for a purse of $5000, which, if successful, will be one of the best races of the year. When the races at Chicago close, it is expected that quite a number of Western horses will come here. The special-train facilities to the track are exceptionally good. Everything now points to a very successful inauguration of the new track.

The announcement of the association was timely in a racing way. Four stakes for 1895 and 1896 close on Monday, and hundreds of entries had already been made for them. Three 1896 stakes, the American Derby, with $10,000 added, it esheridan Stakes, with $2500 added, and the Englewood Stakes, with $2500 added, and the Englewood Stakes, with $2500 added, will also close tomorrow. The club has also four classic events for the 1895 season, which closed last October, and which will have to be abandoned. They are the $25,000 American Derby, upon whose candidates the bookmakers are already beginning; the Queen Isabella Stakes, and the Sheridan Stakes. Although abandoned by the Washington Park Club, these three events are not likely to be nullified.

George V. Hankins of the Chicago Fair Association, who operates the Harlem track, said, after he had heard of the board's action: "I shall make the Washington Park Club an offer to take the stakes which have closed and are to close off their hands. SACRAMENTO, Oct. 14.—The detective are apparently as much at sea as other people concerning the identity of the men who robbed the overland express train who robbed the overland ships as talk between Davisville and this city on Thursday night last. If they do know mike about the affair than other people they are very wisely keeping such information to themselves and are awaiting developments. However, no arrests have been made in this vicinity as yet, which is a pretty good indication that the officers have received no satisfactory clew.

Nothing further has been heard of the two men seen jouth of Washington on Friday morning, carrying valless and from a daylight wisit to the tule ponds west of Washington. No one could have gone down along the river without having been seen, and if the men referred to were the robbers they would not have come up in this direction, as they would have had to pass many farmhouses.

Detective Kindelon of San Francisco, who was at Davisville at the time of the robbery and was soon afterward on the scene, claims to have discovered evidences that the robbers had intended to wreck the train, but changed their minds, after encountering and capturing the trackwalker. He found a crowbar near the scene of the robbery and thinks it was to have been used in loosening a rail. On Saturday one of the officers found a shovel in the tules near Washington, which may have been used to bury the stolen money. The report circulated on Saturday that Inman, alias Carpenter, the whilom "colonel" of the Industrial Army, and who was released from fail here a week ago, had been arrested in Woodland on suspicion of being one of the robbers, was without foundation. He was in that town at the time the train was held up.

There was great excitement in Yolo today, growing out of the suspicious actions of two strangers, who appeared in Woodland and left that town in great haste. Mr. Ellis of the Woodland Mail telephoned to the Record Union that just before 8 a.m. two well-dressed men, who were strangers, entered the bar-room of the Byrnes Hotel through the side entrance. One was short and the other very tall. They carried a large black gripsack, which they placed on the counter before them. Both were freshly shaven. They at once called for and had drinks. One of the men had a cut, or some other similar injury, on one of his hands and asked the barkeeper if he could supply while in the room. While he was getting the cloth he heard one of the men say to his companion: "We had better get out of here pretty quick, or we'll get 'nalled."

Marshai Irwin returned in the afternoon to Woodland. He thinks the men were guilty of some crime other than the train-robbery, which accounts for their strange actions, and that they had no hand in the hold-up. Others expressed the opinion that the whole thing was a practical joke gotten up to fool the officers, while others firmly believe the two strangers to be the men who held up the train, and that they have buried the $50,000 somewhere in the tules.

Signaling Through Space - Protect tion from Lightning-A New Night Industry-On the Opera Stage.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—(Special Correspondence.) W. H. Precce, the English electrician who has for some years been working on the transmission of telegraph messages without direct wires, says that he has not succeeded in determining satisfactorily the general law which regulates the distance to which one can speak in this way, and he scarcely hopes to do so, as the problem is beset with many disturbing elements, geological as well as electrical. Mr. Precce thus explains the mechanism of the mode of signaling across space. Its analogue is a flash of light seen at a distance. Energy is expended, say, in a lighthouse on some dangerous rock, or in a gun firing some form to the distant ship; the eye is in the apparatus which transforms the energy of the light waves into a form which excites consciousness in the brain. In the electrical experiments the primary energy is in the current form, and the comparatively few alternations per second excite waves in the ether of a few hundreds per second only. But these oscillations of the ether or electric waves are of the same character as those of light; they move with the same velocity, and when they fall on a sympathetic secondary conductor, they excite in that opnductor currents of electricity of the same are raised, and they are low-ered by a movement in the opposite discrete discrete and the new device, which to be perfect, and the new device, which is received at the perfect, and the new device, which is received at the perfect, and the new device, which is received at the perfect, and the new device, which is received at the perfect, and the new device, which is received at the new device, which is received a when they fall on a sympathetic secondary conductor, they excite in that conductor, they excite in that conductor currents of electricity of the same frequency; and if a telephone be inserted in that circuit and applied to the ear, sounds and the musical notes are distinctly heard which, by preconcerted measures, such as the use of the Morse code, can be utilized for the transmission of messages. Messages have been sent in this way across the British Channel between Penarth and Flat Holm Island, three and one-tenth miles away. Speech was maintained in the Highlands across Loch Ness, one and one-fourth miles broad, and telegrams were transmitted from Kintyre to Arran, across distances of four and five miles. Mr. Preece holds that when the conditions admit of the erection of the necessary circuits there should be no difficulty in effecting communication between England and France. This can readily be conceived when it is remembered that dis'ance disturbances in telegraphic circuits have been detected which are due to great electrical storms in the sun's photosphere 92 000,000 miles away. This fact leads up to the possibility of signaling across planetary space. Magnetic storms and sun spots of March 30 and 31, 1894, were accompanied by very marked and peculiar sounds in telephones inserted in long telegraph circuits. The sun's photosphere when disturbed by spots may be subject to violent electrical storms, and those vast jets of incandescent hydrogen that flame up with terrible verlocity may excite electrical circuits. The electric storms of the sun may thus be heard on earth. This reduces signaling through etheral space of such a frequency as to influence terrestrial circuits. The electric storms of the sun may thus be heard on earth. This reduces signaling be doubted that the next few years will bring about some mayvelous developments in this fascinating branch of celectrical science.

PROTECTION FROM LIGHTNING. PROTECTION FROM LIGHTNING.

PROTECTION FROM LIGHTNING.

Alexander McAddle states that the danger from lightning is five times greater in the country, where lightning rods are few in number than in a town, where they are generally used. He recommends that the lightning rod, where it passes near gas or water mains, should be connected to them by soldered wires, but an independent connection with the earth or ground by an "earthplate," is even preferable to this. The protection of ships in dry dock is the subject of a recent article from the veteran electrician, Lord Kelvin, who states that an iron ship, simply resting on wooden objects, and without any connection by metal with the water or docks, or river, or sea, in the neighborhood, is, beyond question, dangerous to persons standing on the ground and touching any part of the hull during a hunderstorm. He mistate that to secure men working under a ship in dry-dock from danger, there should be a thorough metalic connection by wire rope or chapters.

the ship's iron, such as bollards, ring-bolts, etc., and iron pipes leading to the water outside the drydock. Similar pre-cartions ought to be taken in respect to the frames of ships on the stocks in the course of building. Lord Keivin's opinion was effected in consequence of the death by lightning of two men who had sought shelter under a vessel in the Norfolk (Va.) drydock during a thunderstorm, and the result of its expression is that the precautions he recommends are to be adopted in all the English government

A NEW NIGHT INDUSTRY.

When the are light first came into general use in American cities, it was remarked that large numbers of toths and other insects were lured to the ricinity of the light by the trignerss of its rays, and many of these found their way into the glass globe, which encased the hamp. Bittomologists soon realized that a new means of enriching their collections of insects was close to their hand, and many rare specimens were secured through the friendly offices of the lineman wire trimmed the lamps daily. The introduction of the are light for European street lighting has been greatly retarded, but now that it is effected, the fascination of the fight for night insects is abundantly illustrated. In many parts of Europe this phenomenon has been thrued, into a source of revenue, at Carlsbad, the moth-collectors are in force nightly around the arc lamps in the streets of the town, provided with butterfly nets, and those who make a business of procuring specimens of rare insects for sale are doing a thriving business. One and even two doilars is sometimes puid for a valuable insect. A NEW NIGHT INDUSTRY.

THE TREATMENT OF ELECTRIC ACCIDENTS.

Experiment and experience have shown that persons apparently killed by lightning are not always really dead, but in a condition of suspended animation, and probably many lives have been lost heretofore from ignorance of this fact. The recent recommendations, which have been widely published, that every person struck by lightning, and to all appearances dead, should be treated like a drowned person and be subjected to treatment for creating artificial respiration and stimulating the circulation for an hour at least, have drawn the attention of electricians to the necessity of providing for the treatment of persons suffering from electric shocks. It is proposed that suitable instructions, based on those for the restoration of the apparently drowned, should be drawn up and printed on a card with illustrated diagrams, stating in clear and simple ianguage the best steps to restore consciousness and induce respiration. Promptness of action is most requisite in cases of electric shock, and managers or those in authority may not be on the spot at the time an accident occurs, doctors, too, are not always available. It is urged that any workman of ordinary intelligence could, by the he'p of the proposed that one such card shall be put up near every main, switchboard, and another in the testing-room, and central station engineers and factory managers have been asked to assist in putting the idea into practical shape.

NOVEL APPLICATION OF ELECTRICITY ON THE OPERA STAGE.

Those who are familiar with the operas of Wagner will remember that in the opening of "Rheingold," the three Rhine maidens are discovered swimming around a rock in the river. On this rock is placed the "treasure of the Rhine," which they are guarding. Hitherto the simulation of swimming as seen in presentations in this country, has been attained by a cumbersome and somewhat dangerous device. The performers were fixed in a horizontal position on an iron frame work, which rested on tall supports springing from a ne perion on an iron frame work, which resied on tall supports springing from a wagon under the riverbed. This wagon was pushed on a line with the progression of the swimmers by four men. Being nearly entirely covered by the long flowing robes of the Rhine maldens it was supposed to be invisible in front of the curtain; but for the audience in the upper part of the house the illusion of the beautiful scene was completely destroyed, as there the manipulation of the queer perambulator, and the odd motions of the legs of its industrious propellers, could be distinctly seen. Moreover, the singers, who were perched aloft complained of the feeling of seasickness that almost always accompanied the unwonted movement, and more thrust once the opera has had to be postponed because the performers were dow. By turning the keys to the right the sashes are raised, and they are lowered by a movement in the opposite direction. The device is adaptable to any window, but little preparation being meeded, and the remodeling of the frame being unnecessary. In one particular respect it is a great convenience. On the approach of a storm all the windows of the house can be instantly closed without a visit to each window being entsided. This is not only a good feature in its use for schools, halls, public and office buildings, but it makes the invention specially applicable to churches, as the minister can have his pulput provided with a switchboard, and whenever he finds the atmosphere of the church too oppressive, he can lot in a supply of fresh air from one or a dozen windows. If need be, however, the church can be made self-regulating. A simple thermostat can be placed in circuit with the window mechanism, which will automatically oven or close the upper sash according to the temperature of the building.

A lively set-to ensued, in the course of which a good deal of furniture was smashed. They were arrested by Officer Davis and booked for disturbing the peace.

The Senator's Speech Last Saturday.

Republican Principles Strongly Stated and Ably Championed.

Competitive Bailways, the Nicara-gua Canal and San Pedro Har-bor—The Sugar-beet Industry, etc.

The strong and earnest speech of United states Senator George C. Perkins at Arnory Hall last Saturday evening is preeented in extenso below:

"Mr. Chairman and fellow-citizens: This sea of upturned faces, this magnificent audience, speaks in language more potent ce, speaks in language more potent words that the great heart of the this year is with the Republican (Applause.) I esteem myself esystem for that I have the opporthis evoning of meeting the people splendid city of Los Angeles, this ueen City, this great metropolis of South-n California; meeting these people who y their enterprise, their energy and their ush have made this city what it is today. push have made this city what it is today.

"Notwithstanding the great natural resources of Los Angeles county, their development would not have made the progress they have, had it not been for competition between different lines of railroads and coast lines of steamships and sailling vessels; and when the other lines of railroads now projected are completed, it will give an additional impetus to business. Los Angeles also has a splendid line of sea coast of about ninety miles, with several excellent harbors, each adapted to the purposes which they serve.

"But when the Nicarsgua Canal is completed, which it will be at an early day, and that too under the control of the United States government, your coast ports will be de receiving and distributing ports of tens of thousands of tons of merchandise and products of the land each month in the year.

SAN PEDBO HARBOO

SAN PEDRO HARBOR.

SAN PEDRO HARBOR.

"The different boards of United States Engineers have repeatedly reported that San Pedro can be made a first-class harbor and port of refuge by a reasonable expenditure of money upon a breakwater pier. This work must be done by the general government, and no local interest or jealous rivalry should be permitted to divide the delegation in Congress from California on this question. If it does we will get nothing, and the money that rightfully belongs to us for this public improvement will go for some similar improvement on the Atlantic Coast or the Mississippi River. A"I firmly believe that your city will become a great manufacturing center; already the oil is bubbling to the surface of the ground, giving an abundance of fuel to run the machinery of many factories, and sooner or later the mountain streams of the Sierra Madre and the waves of the ocean that wash the coast line will run dynamos to generate all the electricity necessary to furnish a million horse-power to run your mills and street cars, and for other purposes.

A REPUBLICAN CONGRESSMAN

A REPUBLICAN CONGRESSMAN. that he is a Californian? And when we take this home to ourselves, let us feel that citizenship brings with it its responsibilities. We have come together tonight to talk about the political questions that are agitating the public mind, for we are on the eve of a most important election. You are to elect the officers of your county, your Board of Supervisors, which legislates for the county; you are to elect one of the Congressment to make the laws of our State, and you are to elect one of the Congressmen to represent you in the national capital at the central point of our government. It is with you to aid in deciding what shall be the policy of this government in Washington for the next two years. I believe, from what I have seen, that the people of Los Angèles county and of this district will send, as Congressman, James McLachlan to represent them.

POPULAR GOVERNMENT.

POPULIAR GOVERNMENT.

I befreve, my friends, I know, indeed, that every good citizen—whether he is a Democrat, a Populist, or a Republican, or of any other political faith—wants good government; he wants wise faws; he wants those laws honestly and equitably executed. What, my friends, is the object of government? Why, it is to make people contented, prosperous and happy. What does it mixter about some beautiful visionary theory, if good results do not come from it? I believe that all parties mean to be domest. And it is necessary, in this form of government of ours, that we should divide ourselves into parties. While we cannot, as a party, always agree among ourselves, yet, by discussion—for our government is a government of discussion—we reason together, against a proposition or for it. One concedes a tittle, the other concedes something, and, finsily, public opinion crystallizes itself into law, refer the expression of the yoice of the recessaries.

Now. as you know, it requires about $450,000,000 to $500,000,000 per annum for the support of this government, and the Republicans believed the most equitable varieties that money was by imposing a tariff, a license upon goods that are manufactured in other countries; that come into this country to compete with the labor of the style of the proposition of the workingman of this country to compete with the labor of the workingman of this country to compete with the labor of the workingman of this country to compete with the labor of the style of the proposition of the supposition public opinion crystallizes itself into law, or into the expression of the voice of the people. So, out of it come the results we desire to bring—prosperity and happi-

THE WOMEN.

I am glad tonight to see so many ladies present in this audience, for who is there more interested than the women of the more interested than the women of the country in having happy homes and good government; and while we do not burden you, perhaps, with asking you to come to the ballot box and cast your votes, we know that every good woman has more influence for good—aye, tenfold!—than any bad man has for evil. (Applause.) I believe it to be the duty of every woman to take an interest in politics; that she should control or influence her husband, or brother, her son or her sweetheart, and direct him as he should go. In other words, every woman that is of a marriageable age should have a voter. (Laughter and applause.)

THE FOE.

THE FOE.

And now, my friends, on the eve of this election, while we are reasoning together, we must look at the acts of the party that has had control of this government. If you send a man to represent you as your agent, to perform any mission, you ask him when he comes back, "What have you done? Have you carried out my instructions? Have you done as you promised? Have you kept your faith with those that you represent?" So we must hold the party that is in the majority today; that is in control of the government, to a strict accountability for their acts.

Two years ago the people in their wisdom decreed that there should be a change in the political administration of the affairs of this government. Whether it was that they thought one party had been in office too long, it matters not. Our Democratic friends had been promising from time to time what they would do for the people if we but gave them control. For the first time in thirty years both branches of the legislative department of the government and the executive were in the control of the Democratic party. Therefore, we must hold them accountable for what has transpired in the political affairs of our nation during the time since they assumed the refus of government.

BLASTED PROSPERITY.

One year ago last March, or at the time

One year ago last March, or at the time the election took place—two years ago this fall—there was general prosperity all over this land. Our people who wanted employment found it; no man needed be idle if he wanted work. Our machine shops and mines were all running to their full capacity. Our farmers were getting good prices for the products of their farms. General prosperity, Mappiness and contentment were all over this country. But shortly after the election a chauge took place. It seemed as if there was a gathering in the horizon of a great financial cloud; it grew darker and larger until it spread all over this country. The furnace fire went out and the hum of the factory was no longer heard. The Industrial Army began to march through the streets. What was the cause of all this? There was as much money in the country, but those who had it were fearful to give it out. It was the same as if the barometer had indicated a tornade coming; those who lived on the plains sought places of shelter; the ships that lay at anchor in the bay, each put out another anchor. All said: "Let us wait until the steambox had been and the plain sought places of the part of "I move what is the cause of this part of "I move what is the cause of this; I will convene Congress in extra session and will sepseal some of this bad legislation that these Republicans—these tariff robbors—have foisted on the people. So he issued a great proclamation convening Congress in extra session for the purpose of repealing a law known as the Sherman Silver Act. You all ought to know what that Act was; it simply provided that this government should buy each month 4500 counces of silver—56,000 cunces of silver per annum—and that it should issue certificates—legal tender bills—for the same; and these should be accepted in payment for all duties, for all obligations. President Cleveland said: "That is what has caused hard times." Now. I have lived, as you have, in California for some time, and I never knew a man to be hard up because he had to much money. (Laughter and appliause.) If this is not correct, there are jots of us willing to try the experiment of being hard up. Did Congress grant the bill? It went through the House of Representatives with a hurrah, because it was passed to act until all the power of the administration was broughts to hear to repeal that purchasing coates. Amendment and here for sixty days it swayed backward and forward, and there for sixty days it was a novice, as you know, in legislative matters, and while I had doubt when the product of our mines. sustenance, such as tea, coffee, sugar and other necessaries.

THE FREE LIST.

So they placed them on the free list, that they might come into this country free of duty. But our Democratic friends, who are the "champions of the poor man," the "friends of the laboring man," said, "Give us a chance and we will so adjust this matter that we will demonstrate our loyalty and friendship for him." What was the result of their action?

You have read this bill, many of you, but let me briefly recite a few things upon which they took off the duty, and others which they placed upon the free list. First, champagne; second, Havana cigars; next, fine laces; next, fancy furs. The chairman of the committee said: "We have reduced this burden on the people seventy-six millions of dollars;" and so they extended the free list. They put oil paintings on the free list! They put oil paintings on the free list! And the petitions which asked for these articles to be put upon the free list were signed by such poor men as the Vanderbilts, the Astors, and the Goulds of New York! They said, these oil paintings encourage taste for fine arts, therefore they should come in free. I do not think there is any justice in permitting any one to bring a picture into this country, or a piece of statuary, for which he has paid ten, fifty or a hundred thousand dollars, without paying, his license better for it. (Applause.) I believe further, that if our dudes in New Yorkmembers of the Four Hundred—want to wear English broadcloth; if they want their wives and sweethearts to wear fenglish broadcloth; if they want their wives and sweethearts to occur are sended by Worth of Paris or other Parisians, because it is French, or because it is "English, you know," (laughter) then I believe in making them pay the duty. (Renewed laughter and applause.)

THE TARIFF TAX. My friends, what is this tariff tax? They say it is a tax upon our people. Suppose it is. Is not a government the price of a tax? or is not a tax the price of a government? But it is not a tax. The man who produces in the foreign country, providing we manufacture in this, must pay the duty himself. You remember a few years ago we had to stamp our deeds and our hank checks when we executed them. The newspaper man had to pay the postage upon his newspaper; or he did not, rather, but the customer had to pay it—the duty upon his newspaper. That law was repealed. Did the publisher raise the price of the paper? My friends, what is this tariff tax? They

TIN. Take tin that our friends have been talking so much about. In 1870, tin, 104 pounds in a box, sold for $12 a box. The Americans started that industry here, and it kept coming down until it came down to $3.75; until it crushed out the struggling American industry, and then it went up to $5 and $6 a box. When the McKinley tariff came into effect there was $1.29 imposed upon that tin, but the tin did not increase in price in the market; it was the Britisher and the Weishhan that said the duty upon that box of tin to come in here and compete with the manufacturers of that tin in this country. (Applause.) Tin plate after all has but 2 per cent. of tin upon it; the balance is sheet iron, and it is simply galvanized with tin. It represents labor.

NO RAW MATERIAL.

NO RAW MATERIAL.

It represents labor.

NO RAW MATERIAL.

There is no such a thing as raw material. Iron ore is only raw material when it is in the earth, but when the miner attacks it with his pick and his drill and powder, then he takes it out and it is his labor that adds value to it. It goes to the smelting works. It is there amelted, and labor converts it into pig iron; and from par iron into eutlery, until it may become a watch apring; it is labor that does it all. (Applause.) Lumber is raw material when it stands in the tree. It is raw material when it stands in the tree. It is raw material to the lumber man, to the sawmill man, and when it goes from the sawmill in boards to the cabinet maker or the plann omaker, it is raw material to him. But it has all been advanced by American labor. (Applause.) Why should we not protect American labor? (Applause.) Our friends have made a great hurrah about reducing the duty upon coal 35 cents a ton. That was taken off. Is coal any cheaper in this market? If it is not, it is because the few struggling American mines today are keeping down the price. Who is there of you that has his gas bills any less than they were before the repeal of this law? All of our gas coal is imported. I will venture to say there is not one person in this city who has his gas bill one cent less. It has either gone into the pockets of the foreign coal miner, or to the ship-owner that has brought the coal here, or into the pocket of the broker who has been legislating and working for this reduction. Why, Canada waited till they knew what we were going to dowith the duty on coal—and I speak of the Canadians because that is the strongest argument of our friends on the other side, what they have saved to the people by this reduction of duty on coal—Canada waited until this bill passed, and then imposed 68 cents per ton upon coal that is taken from the United States; that is taken from the United States; that is by this reduction of duty on coal—Canada waited until this bill passed, and then imposed 68 cents per ton upon coal that is taken from the United States; that is taken from Indiana, Illinois or any other State into Canada. She does the same upon all articles that go into that country. Why, the colonies of England, Canada and Australia are the strongest protective countries in the world. Why should the policy that is good for England not be good for her colonies? Why should it be good for the statistician, Mutholiand, says—he is an Englishman, and recognized as an authority; he must be correct, or such credit would not be given him—that England is obliged to go outside of her country for 33 per cent. of her raw material, while she United States has within her country 95 per cent. of raw material. (Applause.) My friends, the statement of that fact is argument unanswerable why we should protect our American labor by imposing a tariff upon goods that come in from other countries to compete with our people. How can we do otherwise? If an article can be produced in England or Gawmany for 80 cents, brought to this country in a foreign ship, and the same article costs us $1 to manufacture it here, is it not as plain as that darkness follows daylight that our cost of manufacturing is—labor—must come down on a level with the price of that in other countries? (Applause.)

They have a law on the statute-books

the price of that in other countries? (Appliause.)

They have a law on the statute-books providing against the importation of contract Jaborers, pauper laborers, into this country. And we once had a law prohibiting Chinese from coming into this country. (Appliause.) . . I want to ask you this question now: What does it avail us, if this law is upon our statute-books if the product of the Chinese laborer in Shanghai and Hong Kong—you know they are experts in making boots and shoes and other handwork—if the product of their fabor can be brought into this country free, what does it bemedit to exclude them from the country? Why, if they were here, we could sell them, perhaps, some garden truck, or a pair of Dongora overalls, or something of that kind. Of the two evils, that would be the least.

GOOD FELLOWS, BUT FAILURES. But our Democratic friends have another theory, and in speaking of our Democratic friends, I am going to refer to Prof. Wil-son, the author of the bill. Now, I want to say this, that I say nothing in malice.
Personally, I entertain the kindest and warmest affection for my Democratic friends; indeed, as individuals, they are delightful, charming men and women, but as soon as they associate themselves together as a political party or organization, they are a great failure. (Lauschter and SUGAR.

Now, they propose to make up this $76,000,000 that they have reduced—how? Why, the first thing they did was to impose a duty of 40 per cent. ad valorem upon sugar. That means $45,000,000 per annum that the people of this country must pay for sugar. The last, statistical report says that every man, woman and child in this country consumes about sixty-five and one-half nounts of sugar per service. called in limit country consumes about sixty-five and one-half pounds of sugar per annum. Every one of them, therefore, must contribute to paying this tax upon this sugar. Think of it, you poor man, like myself, with half a dozen or more like myself, with trail a dozen or more children in your family, when you have got to buy candy for them all! Think of it, when you go to your groceryman and find that under this political administration, instituted and organized in the interest of the "poor man!" Think of it, when you get five pounds of sugar less for a dollar than you did under the obnaxious McKinley act!

THE BEET-UGAR BOUNTY. More than that. The government, through your representatives, said: "We will put sugar on the free list, but we

More than that. The government, through your representatives, said: "We will put sugar on the free list, but we are going to encourage the production of sugar in thias country. We will help out Louisiana. We will do more than that. Scientists tell us by an analysis of the soil that there are fifteen States in this Union that will produce the sugar-heet; so we will imitate Germany and France for once, and we will do the same as they do; we will give a bounty for a term of years to encourage our people to raise their own sugar. If we can do this we will keep $115,000,000 or $120,000,000 at home — in this country. (Applause.) And so they entered into a contract, a solemn covenant with the people, that for infteen vears they would pay 2 cents a solemn covenant with the people, that for infteen vears they would pay 2 cents a pound duty or bounty upon every pound of sugar produced in the United States of a certain standard. Under that covenant this industry started up all over the country. Now, I will not go further than our own State. In your own county and the two counties adjoining it, there was an object lesson. Today at Chino they are paying out to the farmers from $2000 to $4000 every day for sugar-beets raised here by your next-door neighbors and taken into this nell! (Applause.) In Anaheim, I was told, the sugar-beet could be grown to such perfection that it went as high in some casse as 22 and even 24 per cent. of sugar; twenty pounds on an average of sugar in every hundred pounds of beets. That made it from $6 to $9 per ton for these beets at the factory. These factories had been built upon the promises of our government that for fifteen years the bounty should romain in force. Yet our Democratic friends, the first thing they did, repealed that act. I say it is bad faith, and in the language of President Cleveland, it was "perflay and dishonor" to do so! (Applause.) If any one of you had made such a contract with me, as the chairman of your meeting will tell you, and I had violated that contract, if I was w

A STORY.

The author of that bill, Prof. Wilson, some time since found himself in poor health. And by the way, I cannot resist health. And by the way, I cannot resist the temptation to tell you a story in relation to what occurred to him while some of our visitors in Washington were viewing him from the gallery. He was in poor health, and two Hibernians were discussing it. They had been Democrats, but had left the fold, they said to themselves, this Democratic government won't do. One of them said to the other: "See old am Wilson; he ought to be sick, but I am sorry for his misfortune. This is an extravagant government, and I don't understand it." Then they went out. Soon they saw a sprinkling cart with advertisements on it: "Mrs. Winslow's soothing syrup," "Townsend's Sarsaparilla" and "Apollinaris Water." "Jimmy, what is that?" said one. "Don't you know?" said Jimmy, 'that is to sprinkle the streets for Prof. Wilson's health." (Laughter.) He thought it was soothing-syrup in the watercart. (More laughter.) CHAIRMAN. WILSON ABROAD.

Prof. Wilson left Washington and went through the great manufacturing States of Delsware, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York. There was no Republican Delaware, Ohio, Pennsyivania, New Jersey and New York. There was no Republican club or federation of clubs out to meet him with torches burning, banners and flags waving; and to the credit of the Democracy, there was no Democratic eclipse either. (Applause.) He went to New York; he took passage on a foreign ship flying an English flag at its peak, and went across the Atlantic to the great manufacturing center of England—Manchester. The Board of Trade convened and gave him a baquet—heralded him as the advanced thinker of the age. He had been legislating for foreign countries instead of for this country! (Applause.) They gave him a reception and banquet. I, for one, had rather feel the honest handshake of the humblest blacksmith in this land than to receive all the banquets and the plaudits from the whole English people under such circumstances. (Tremendous applause.) THE CHINESE.

whole English people under such circumstances. (Tremendous applause.)

THE CHINESE.

Our Democratic friends say they are the champions of the workingman; that they are opposed to servile labor coming into this country to compete with our people. You have heard them say this a hundred times upon the rostrum, upon the political stump and elsewhere; and I will do them the justice to say so, that so far as the Chinese were concerned they were in favor of the Exclusion Act of 1878. This question was submitted to our people. Of the 162,000 votes cast there were but $31 in favor of Chinese immigration in California. Therefore, I will say that I believe that the party as a whole in this State have been in accord with the Republicans. But, after we had our last enacted law and knew that the statules based upon it had been judically construed by the highest judicial tribunal of the land—the Supreme Court of the United States—that no laboring Chinaman who lived in this country could return again to our people, we were satisfied and rested secure that there would be no further legislation upon Chinese immigration. With disappointment, chasrin and surprise did we hear that President Cleveland had instructed Secretary Gresbam to make a new treaty with China, through her representative Minister, then in Washington. The treaty was duly considered, executed and submitted to the Senate for its ratification. You know the President has not the power, without the advice and consent of the Senate, to make such a treaty. When that treaty came into the Senate telegrams came pouring in from this State, from the Republican State Central Committee, and from citizens all over the State, saying. "Don't ratify that treaty." It went to the committee, and for four or five months it remained there. The Senate was carefully polied; it was found impossible to the committee, and for four or five months it remained there. The Senate was carefully polied; it was found impossible to the committee, and for four or five months it remained there. The S less they have a father of mother, or a child in this country, or if they owe $1000, or if they have $1000 owing to them. Now, every C. anman that comes to this coun-try, you know, owes allegiance to one of the six Chinese commercial companies; it overy C. S. man that comes to this country, you know, owes allegiance to one of the six Chinese commercial companies; it paid their passage to this country, and there is no question in the mind of any reasonable man who is familiar with their mode of procedure of doing business that they come under contract. Now, how easy it is, when they come out of this country to go to the Collector of Port and say: "I owe Yin Sing Company $1000, or they owe ma $1000; I want a certificate of that." and under the law the collector must give him one. He goes to China and has, under the terms of that treaty, the privilege of returning again to the United States any time within two years.

(After some further discussion, of this matter of Chinese immigration and the laws bearing upon it, as epitomized in yesterday's paper, the Senator went on:)

"IT'S GOOD, THOUGH!"

"IT'S GOOD, THOUGH!"

And yet today, to my surprise, my Demo-cratic friends are accepting this without question. It reminds me of the time when I was a miner, away up in the mountains. We used to take turns in cooking; and the I was a miner, away up in the mountains. We used to take turns in cooking; and the man selected to cook continued to do so until some of his companions found fault with him; then the man finding fault was obliged to take his turn at the bellows. There had been a very oxcellent cook, but his life became monotonous, and he said to himself, "I am going to stop this," and one night, in making up his bread, he put in some mustard, some sait, and some pepper, and then cooked the bread. His companions came in, and one of them began to eat the bread. He placed it in his mouth and stopped a moment. Now his turn would come. He was about to cry out against the strange compound but, restraining himself, and making a fearful face, he contrived to utter, "it's good, though." (Great laughter.) So it is with our Democratic friends. They were angry; they sent the chairman of the State Central Committee to Washington to remonstrate against the treaty. They waited upon Secretary Gresham and the President and remonstrated against it; they said: "If you do this the Republicans will sweep the Pacific Coast States." (Applause.) We are going to do it; for once their prophecy will come true. (Applause.) Now they are like the miner: "It is good, though!" (Laughter.) But it is not a sugar-coated dose, and it comes very, very hard, indeed.

RECIPROCITY STRANGLED. RECIPERCOTTY STRANGLED.

But our Democratic friends have done more than this. They have abolished the reciprodity treaty, which was inspired by that prince of American statesmen, James G. Blaine. (Great applause.) You know, it was found, att, a time, that some of the foreign countries with which we were dealing, especially Cuba, Brazil and Gustamula, had imposed an export duty upon coffee, after we had placed it upon the free list. So our government said: "We will empower the President, so that if any one of these countries imposes an export duty upon coffee, tea, or hides, or sugar, he shall have power, by proclamation, to impose a duty upon these articles when they come into this country. Further than that, that these countries shall receive, free of duty, any of the products of the American farmer. It was a splendid faw. It was a law of reciprocity. It would serve our mutual interests; we could trade together. "I will help you, if you will help me," was the idea, and the result was that with Cuba our business had doubled, res, quadrupled, and with Brazil it had increased two-fold. Our Dunocratic friends have repealed that law, simply because it was conceived in the brain of a Republican statesman. (Laughter and applause.) I do not believe that after the election on the 6th of November, they will have the name of Democracy, even, to stand by. (Applause.)

THE BILLION-DOLLAR CONGRESS. I saw in the press yesterday that Vice-President Stevenson, making a speech in Indiana, had said: "We have done such President Stevenson, making a speech in Indiama, had said: "We have done such wonderful things; this great billion-dollar Congress of Republicans—we have wiped out all such business as that." Why, my friends, the billion-dollar Reed Congress, which was the Fifty-first Congress, appropriated $988,000,000 for two years. The next Congress was one-third Democratic. They have been howling about this billion-dollar Congress from the rostrum, from the press, yet that next Congress appropriated $1,272,000,000!—(laughter and applause) millions of dollars more than the Republican Congress. But what has this fiscal year of President Cleveland done? You know that the Treasurer or the President is obliged to make an estimate of the amount of money required by the various departments of the government for its support—the army, the legislative and the judicial departments, Indian agencies, geographical surveys, the lighthouse division and all of the various departments of the government that have to be estimated by the heads of the respective departments. Now, he estimated that for the next fiscal year it would require $520,000,000. Congress did appropriate $490,000,000.

ROBBING THE PENSIONERS.

ROBBING THE PENSIONERS.

They cut down from the estimate thirty millions and they took that thirty millions of dollars out of the pensions given to the soldiers. (Applause and laughter.) I believe, when Congress meets in December, there will be deficiency bills enough to make it considerably more than half of the billion-dollar Congress. Then the billion-dollar Congress was for two years, and yet the last Congress did not appropriate a dollar for any public buildings outside of the Diatrict of Columbia. They did not give more than one-third to the average estimate made for internal improvements, Why, you did not get anything for San Pedro! And every coast port must only receive about one-third of the estimate. And yet it cost this much more than the Reed Congress.

A DEFICIENCY LOOMING UP. ROBBING THE PENSIONERS.

More than that, the Secretary of the Treasury, as you are aware, is required to make a report at the end of each fiscal year, of the receipts and expenses of the government. In his last report you will year, of the receipts and expenses of the government. In his last report you will find that the expenses of the government exceeded the receipts by over thirty-eight millions of dollars. How was this made up? It was made up by money in the treasury, and by issuing fifteen million more bonds, bearing 4 per cent., giving thirty-eight millions of dollars more into the treasury, And the estimate is made officiently of fully twice this amount. How is that for the record of the first year of President Cleveland's administration?

And yet they say? You Republicans have taken advantage; you have robbed the public; and Mr. Harison's administration padd off thirty millions of the indebted-ness of the government. (Applause.) Presi-dent Cleveland has increased the indebted-ness fifty millions; and you must pay two millions of dollars per annum interest upon the fifty millions. And if the admin-stration could have forced-as they should istration could have forced—as they should have done—Congress to issue bonds, if it were necessary, we could have placed our 2½ or 3 per cent. bonds in the market of the world at par. But they were atraid to submit the question to Congress; they issued these bonds under this law, which they found upon the statute books; at the same time they say it is all caused by the bad management of the Republican administration. (Laughter.) THE SURPLUS WIPED OUT.

administration. (Laughter.)

THE SURPLUS WIPED OUT.

My friends, look at the report of the fiscal year ending 1893, and you will find there was ten millions dollars surplus; at the end of the year 1894 there was nearly three millions surplus. It would have been very much more, only they were threatened with this new tariff bill that wanted to throttle the energies of our people, and no one would buy goods or import goods until they knew what the tariff was to be. But the trusts and combinations went on just the same; and our Democratic friends said: "We will raise the price of whisky." Well, now, we can stand that if we can stand anything in the world. But they should have acted at once. Instead of that the bill was introduced and it hung fire for one month, two, aye, five months, and after the bill passed there went out a circular from the Secretary of the Treasury giving instructions how the law should be carried out. At one time it was estimated there was $200.000.000 worth of whisky in bond and in process of being distilled by the various distilleries running. at 20 cents a gallon, to $200,000,000, a gain of $40,000,000 to the Whisky Trust. It is thus the Sugar Trust carried over $120,000,000 worth of sugar free of duty. Will they give the people the benefit of that? Oh, no! That goes to the great Sugar Trust.

THE CHINESE TREATY.

In connection with the Chinese treaty. I THE CHINESE TREATY.

to the great Sugar Trust.

THE CHINESE TREATY.

In connection with the Chinese treaty, I desire to say one thing, which I neglected. You know, in considering a treaty it is always done in executive session, and that session is strictly secret. No one can honorably reveal it, and anything I say tonight has been published, and it is not connected with the action of any secret session. But I want to tell you what the newspapers in Washington said about the action of that executive session, in considering this treaty. I do not say that the mewspapers are always right, but they come within hailing distance of the truth usually. They said that that treaty, after having been considered so long, having sent to China and brought Minister Denby here to use his influence for it, to urge its passage, Secretary Gresham personally interviewed them all, and it was finally agreed upon that a vote should be taken on a certain day. And this newspaper said—no one has denied it—that every Democratic Senator favored the ratification of that treaty except one, and that was Senator Turple of Indiana—

Now, I do not say that this is true, but no Democrat has ever denied it; and, as the newspaper that gave us that information gave the vote correctly about Van Alen's promotion, when he was appointed Minister to Italy—he was the financial agent in the Presidential campaign, you know—(Laughter)—of the Democratic party (more laughter)—they gave the vote correctly upon that; also upon Justice Peckham and Justice Hornblower and Minister Breckinridge, who was appointed to Russia. He was a member of the Finance Committee, not the Breckinridge of Kentucky, (Laughter)—This was a Democratic friend of the President, but not that friend (renewed laughter)—as they gave these correctly, I have no reason, in the absence of denial by our Democratic friends, but say the information is correct.

THE SIGNS IN THE POLITICAL SKY Now those who say that the Democratic party is the friend of the laboring-man, party is the friend of the laboring-man, let them consider well these propositions. I do not believe, if I read the signs of the times aright, that our Democratic friends will succeed. The signs have gome to us from Maine, from Vermont and Connecticut even. I believe it will be their Waterloo on the 6th of November. (Loud appliause.)

AN EVANGELICAL PATLUDE It reminds me very much of a theological student who graduated some time since from one of our leading theological from one of our leading theological naries. He went to the bishop and "Bishop, I have been educated for the naries. He went to the bishop and said:
"Bishop, I have been educated for the ministry, and I am going to start out now and convert the world." "Bravo, my friend, I admire you for your zeal; may God bless you," said the bishop. The worthy prelate met him a year later: "How are you getting on, brother?" "I am going to confine my attention now to the United States." The bishop answered, "Well done, my brother, go on." He met him a year later and inquired how he was getting on. "Well," he said, "bishop, I have decided to confine my attention hereafter to converting the people of California." He met him a year later, but the good theological student had evidently been going down in the world. The bishop put to him the usual question: "How are you getting along evangelizing the people of the State?" The student replied "(Hitc) bishop, if I (hitc) save my own soul, I'm doin' pretty well." (Much laughter.) So with our Democracy there will be nothing left more for them. (Laughter.)

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY.

It is our duty, my friends, seriously, deliberately and calmly, to reflect upon our course as citizens of this great republic. You cannot shift the responsibility to your neighbor, but you must for yourself calmly, without passion or frejudice, decide what you believe to be the best financial, the best political policy for the general advancement of our whole people. No section of our country can be depressed and another prosperous without affecting it all. Our laws should be equitable and just to each and every one. And when election comes, forget for the time being, if you please, the traditions of our grand old party, its history, its patriotism, its loyalty to the old flag, its loyalty to the soldiers, its loyalty to find the soldiers, its loyalty to find the soldiers, its loyalty to floyalty, kindness and affection for his popule, all he had was theirs; and they honored and respected him, and, as he neared the limit of man's existence, three score and ten, on his birthday the people turned out and on a hill like yonder hillike the San Gabr It is our duty, my friends, seriously, deliberately and calmly, to reflect upon our course as citizens of this great re-

ELECTING UNITED STATES SENATORS

DIRECT.

I may not be very much longer in Congress, but I hope, before the few weeks that I have to stay expire, that I will have the opportunity of voting on an emendment to our Constitution that will enable you, the people, to vote direct for those who shall represent you in the United States Senate. (Applause.)

It is, I believe, for the best interests of this country that it should be so. The conditions that existed when we were but thirteen States, when our Constitution was formed, were very different from what they are today. Great corporations have grown up and great individual interests, great trusts have been fostered and built up. They existed, however, before the Republican party ever came into existence.

If you believe this, as I know you will, if you but stop and reflect, you will believe as I do, that the best interests of this country will be subserved this year by voting the straight Republican ticket. THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

Quite a sensation was created in New York some time ago by the novel ods of Rev. W. F. Rainsford, a clergyman of the Episcopal church undertook to reform the traffic by establishing model saloons, which uld be run under the oversight of the church. The idea was so entirely ent from anything that had yet been proposed that it, of course, came in for a vast amount of criticism both from the prohibitionists and the liquor n, neither of which classes could b expected to favor the new departure recent issue of the North Ameri-Review, Mr. Rainsford come back to his proposition and answer of the crticisms which have been nade thereon. He disclaims any be that his plan of temperance would abolish so deep-rooted an evil as the one under consideration, is convinced that it would go far mitigate some of the worst features of the liquor traffic. In regard to the sition of the prohibitionists. Mr. Rainsford says that nothing can be done with the Prohibition party. He laims that they are wrong in princi-He claims that the sort of sawhich he suggests ought to pay well, and it should not be difficult to ure respectable men experienced in retail liquor business to conduct them. Temperance reformers, he says as a rule, know little of saloons or sa n-keepers, and draw pictures of them which are apt to be somewhat imaginative. The ordinary retailer detests eing a drunken man on his premises He thinks a man is a fool to get drunk, and a nuisance when he is drunk-because he is an injury to his

This, it will be observed, is directly opposite to the ideas those who would have all tables nd chairs removed from saloons making them bare rooms in fact as

Mr. Rainsford also counts largely upon education as a means of dimin-ishing the evils of intemperance. This he believes should begin with the dren in the public schools; and to do this, we must know about the ef-fects of alcohol. The most contradictory statements have been made on subject, guaranteed by names of ight; and the ordinary man finds it st impossible to come to a definite lusion. On one side, he hears alphol is poison, pure and simple; on other, that it is a food. It certainly cannot be claimed even by the most sanguine that prohibitio has so far proved a brilliant success, and there could be no harm in trying some other method for a time. It is, however, useless to expect any such movement to come from the ranks of the prohibitionists. The minds of those well-meaning people are so en-tirely taken up with the idea of what man should be that they cannot come down from their pedestal and deal with man as he is. The fact that so large a proportion of the worthy and espectable element of the country is thus committed to an extreme, not to say, impracticable theory, makes the solution of the liquor question in the United States far more difficult than it is in other countries, where the moderate consumption of light alcoholic beverages is not regarded as

The strike of June-July, 1894, has had at least one good effect-in prospect, and that is in the reorganiza tion of the N.G.C., looking to the placing of it on a "war footing." Sonator Perkins, in his speech last Saturday night, scored the Democracy for its "perfidy and dishonor" in going back on the fifteen-year contract which the government had made with the American sugar-producers, and clearly demonstrated that the party of trusts and scandals is as ready to "bust up" a business deal, made in good faith, as to go back on promise made in the party's platform. The crosswalk question is to come up before the City Council at today's meeting. The report of the Board of Public Works will recommend that each Councilman be allowed ten crosswalks for his ward. The City Engineer has been instructed to prepare an estimate for the various sewer districts of the city showing in each case where the cost of construction of the sewers for a district is in excess of what it would cost to build eight-inch sewers for the district; and also how much such excess is. As some of the districts would need ten-inch sewers to care for their own drainage, the report of the engineer will probably show the excess of the cost of the sewers constructed large enough to carry sewage from districts above and over the cost of putting in ten-inch sewers.

An Kloquent Sermon by Dr. McLean.

Rev. Mr. Thomson of Unity Church Again Occupies His Pulpit.

Seventh Day Adventist Services at Their Camp Ground—Mr. Bane's Evening Sermon—Y. W.C.A. Gospel Meeting.

There was a large audience at Simpson Tabernacle yesterday morning to listen to Rev. Dr. C. C. McLean's eloquent sermon which was taken from II Timothy, iv. 2. "Preach the Word."

Everything is subservient to the teaching of the word, said the speaker, and your work and my work is included in the text. I am commissioned of God to preach His

I am commissioned of God to preach His gospel, that is why I stand before you this morning, but you are as fully commis-sioned. I do not believe that God has given me ten commandments to keep, and you only nine.

We must be consistent in our lives. I believe in the old teachings of holy liv-ing, and I do not believe in the right of any church to say that their denomination is the nearest to the divine life. "I am the way, the truth, and the life," says Christ, and it is the duty of every minister to point men that way. But this is not all of his duty.

ister to come to the pulpit prepared for his work, and you have a right to expect to see him in your homes. The minister who would show the true spirit of Christ's gospel, must be a man who carries hope and sunshine in his life, as he mingles with his people.

who would show the true spirit of Christ's gospel, must be a man who carries hope and sunshine in his life, as he mingles with his people.

I am but the finger pointing the way to the eternal city. I am but the mortal man who is to hide himself behind the cross of Christ, as he holds up the light of life. To do this I must talk with God and learn of Christ. Then after much study of the greatest of preachers, I must come to you with living truths, that condemn sin and guide the sinner to eternal life. Truths that will show the heights and depths, and lengths and breadths of the love of God.

That I may not fall far short of my duty. I need your sympathy, co-operation and earnest prayers; unyleiding faith, and a consecrated devotion.

At the close of the service three were united by letter.

EAST LOS ANGELES BAPTIST CHURCH

EAST LOS ANGELES BAPTIST CHURCH EAST LOS ANGELES BAPTIST CHURCH
Rev. George E. Dye, pastor of the East
Los Angeles Baptist Church, delivered a helpful sermon Sunday morning on "Leadership." He took for his text, "And a littile child shall lead them." During his remarks he said the world is yet to give way to the spiritual leadership predicted in the eleventh chapter of Isaiah. As people become educated they are more and more led by spiritual motives. Violence is losing its empire; modern great leaders in military, political and ecclesiastical circles are men of tenderness. Society is waiting to be properly led, and all the youth of our land are waiting spiritual leadership. Each good and beautiful act in your past becomes an impulse to others to do the same thing.

The church no longer preaches a cast-ship. Each good and beautiful leader past becomes an impulse to others to do the same thing.

The church no longer preaches a castiron, military, hell-fire gospel. It offers no longer dogmatic thought, but the most reasoning and the best sentiment it can bring, "Peade on earth, good will toward men." It is not the distrust of great doctrines which has brought about this change, but that personal liberty of opinion which is as sacred as it is widespread.

When Christ was upon earth He took a little child and sacred as little will did and set it in the midst of the squabbling disciples and said: "Except ye become as a little child ye cannot enter the kingdom of heaven." We are going now through life's dark woods, but will eventually emerge into the clearing of miliennial blessings, where the innocent, merry spirit of the child will lead us.

The choir, under the leadership of Mrs. Neilie Morfoot, rendered some fine music.

Y.W.C.A. The gospel meeting at the Young 107 North Spring street, was well at tended yesterday afternoon. Miss Caro line Harris presided at the plano, and the meeting was opened by singing. Mrs. P. W. Dorsey read from John xiv, and, selecting verses 21 and 22, as her theme, made an earnest and thoughtful address. Among other things, she said we hear much in these modern times of methods, and a great deal of attention is given, especially in all teaching, to the securing of the best of them. So, he who would be a student of the school of Christ, must accept the method given by our Savior as the best one, and the key to this is obedience. If we are obedient, God will reveal Himself to us through the loving personality of Christ, who was full of love, goodness, pity and compassion. Another thing to learn in this school, will be humility, and how can we learn that except by obedience? We must size have the spirit to desire this knowledge, for be humility, and how can we learn that except hy-obedience? We must also have the spirit to desire this knowledge, for nothing is successfully studied if we do not bring to fit the right spirit. Unless we have the love of Christ, that will lead us constantly up, we shall not make much progress.

Mrs. Dorsey then spoke of the inspiration it should be to every true soul, that we have an example of absolute goodness, and that our highest aim in life should be to emulate that example.

In closing, she said: "Our ability to enjoy heaven will depend upon the characters we have formed on earth." She foilwed her address with prayer.

ters we have formed on earth." She fol-lowed her address with prayer.

Miss Enilie Alexander of Immanuel Church sang a beautiful solo.

Miss Morse spoke briefly in the line of thought that Mrs. Dorsey frad expressed, and the services closed with singing, and the Christian Endeavor benediction.

The Y.W.C.A. had charge of the service last evening at the Bethlehem Church, on the corner of Vignes and Lazard streets.

Mrs. L. D. Chapin addressed the meet-ing.

pastor, Rev. J. S. Thomson, who has just returned from his vacation, delivered a sermon from the text found in Genesis v. 24: "Epoch walked with God, and he was not, for God took him."

Enoch's name would seem to indicate that he belonged to an ancient order of Free Masons, said Mr. Thomson. Hé lived one year for every day in the year; and this might signify not only that his life was complete, but also that he was a devoted student of astronomy. He was also a lover of nature, as Christ was, and as every religious prophet ought to be. "The Book of Enoch," referred to by Jude, highly prized by Tertullian, and discovered by Bruce in the east in 1773, and written in the Ethiopic language, describes the fall of angels, purgatory, heaven, astronomy, geology, dreams; and it shows that nature reveals God's wisdom, power, and providence. He preached civil service reform in an age of political and social corruption. He walked with God in the training of all his faculties for the duties of life and in ebedience to all the divine commandments known to him. He lived in his own age, and not as some in a past age, or in a future age. He walked with the best tandencies of his time. He was translated into the regions of bliss, because he walked with God, because he bobyed God, because he da virtuous life, and not because he was a creature of favoritism, nor because somebody else died to make God love him. This is the plain teaching of the little.

of God can directly teach the soul and inspire it to write Bibles; but this does not prove that Bibles, as teachers, are useless. Men did live in primitive times without our machinery, tools, selence, and forms of government; but our age demands these things. So without our Bible, Moses, Elijah, Christ, or Paul, our civilization would be impossible.

The meeting for men at the Young Men's Christian Association yesterday atternoon drew a large audience. George Taylor of Pasadena gave an interesting report of the Jubice Convention of the Young Men's Christian Association held in London in June, on the occasion of the fittieth anniversary of their founding. The report was in the form of a narrative and gave a clear picture of the scenes of the great convention and the famous men who were present. The association, born fitty years ago, now numbers an army of half a million young men. Photographs and other mementoes were shown at the close of the meeting.

Next Sunday, Rev. Dr. R. F. Coyle of Oakland, one of the finest pulpit orators on the Coast, will address the regular 3 o'clock meeting for men. His subject will be, "The Young Mar and Tomorrow."

SEVENTH DAY ADVENTISTS.

At the camp of the Seventh Day Advent-

At the camp of the Seventh Day Adventists, Elder A. W. Bartlett preached at 2:30 p.m. on the "Saints' Inheritance." His ists, Elder A. W. Bartlett preached at 2:30 p.m. on the "Saints' Inheritance." His text was I. Corinthians ii, 9: "But as it is written, eye hath not seen, nor ear heard; neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him."

He said that the chief things which God has prepared for them that love Him. is that of the inheritance of the saints. In the Bible the inheritance of the saints. In the Bible the inheritance of the saints is called a country. Jesus said, "Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth." The Apostle Peter was shown three worlds, the world before the deluge, the present world and the world to come. We, according to God's promise, look for new heavens and new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness. The original purpose of God was that this earth should be inhabited by righteous beings. Had Adam and Eve never sinned, of course they would have been living upon this earth today, which would have forever been their inheritance. Adam lost this inheritance, but it is restored by Jesus Christ, the second Adam, who came to seek and to save that which was lost. But there is the new Jerusalem, the metropolis of the glorified new earth, in which there shall be no night. We shall ever feel the freshness of the morning, and shall ever be far from its close. The light of the sun will be superseded by a radiance which far surpasses the brightness of our noonday splendor.

TRINITY METHODIST EPISCOPAL TRINITY METHODIST EPISCOPAL

CHURCH. At Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church last night, Rev. A. C. Bano delivered a sermon from the text, "Remember Lot's seriora from the text, "Remember Lot's wife."

Mr. Bane spoke of the pillar of salt, into which Lot's wife is supposed to be turned, as emblematic of the fate which awasts those who, like her, persist in defying the commands of God. The only purpose of some lives, he said, is to warn others from the paths which they themsives have followed, and, like Lot's wife, they stand as monuments, testifying to the greatness of God and the danger of provoking His wrath by defying Him. He also warned Christians not to look back at the vanities of the world, after they have chosen the straight and narrow path, with Christ's cross as their guide. This, he says, is the cause of all backsliding, and will be punished more severely than any other sin. He closed his remarks with a solemn adjuration to every man and a solemn adjuration to every man and woman to come to Christ completely, will-ing to sacrifice all, and, with an unques-tioning faith, which will never look back.

A New Material for Making Joints. Can Idiots Be Cured - A Typewriter for Bookkeeping.

spondence.) H. T. Gause, in a recent paper on the further development of the Atlantic "greyhound," foreshadows the various directions in which ocean racers will be modified with a view to attaining greater speed and efficiency. The hull will probably receive the first attention; alumi-num, or one of its alloys, is likely to ultimately supersede iron and steel, both in plates and shapes, as it has barely one-third the density of steel, but possesses equally high tensile and ductile qualities. There are also great possibilities for nickel steel in this connection. The model of the ship may be expected to be fined down and shayed away, so as to reasonble in its lines. There are also great possibilities for nickel steel in this connection. The model of the ship may be expected to be fined down and shaved away, so as to resemble in its lines a modern yacht rather than a metamorphosed canal boat; and the forefoot will probably be further cut away, so as to insure greater ease and rapidity in turning and railed from the severe strains. which the rudder and steering gear are now subjected. Harbor channels will have to be deepened, and then, with increased hull depth, the probable practical length of the ocean steamer of the future will be 800 to 900 feet, and the beam will follow soo to 900 feet, and the beam will follow in proportion, having due regard for the requirements of speed and sea qualities. The intensely severe internal stress arising from the vibration of the machinery must be neutralized in some way, and some effective compensation for this trouble will in all likelihood be applied specifically and locally to each engine, on the broad principle of the resultant of divergent force. This is even now being successfully accomplished in some of the torpedo-boats in England, and there should be no great difficulty in carrying it out ent force. This is even now being successfully accomplished in some of the torpedo-boats in England, and there should be no great difficulty in carrying it out on the larger scale of ocean practice. The question of stiffening the interior of ships' hulls will naturally receive more attention as they increase in size and their machinery in power. Mr. Gause predicts that the future transatiantic liner will, for business and competitive reasons, probably lie a shorter time at the dock and spend more days at sea, and carry only such classes of freight as can be loaded and discharged with great dispatch. The tendency in regard to masts and rigging is towards the carrying of but two light and graceful steel-pole masts, made hollow for ventilation, one being placed forward and one aft, and intended merely for steadying the ship, in a heavy sea. These masts can be fitted with small navy "tops" as stations for lookouts, search-lights, and electric signals. But the pre-eminent question will be speed. More screws will be introduced, and correspondingly more engines behind them. The steamship of the future will be fitted, not with three, but with eight or ten bronze propellers, each making from 1000 to 1500 revolutions per minute, driven by high-speed rotary electric motors running in oil. The fuel will be crued cil, and the skin will be made mirror-like so as to reduce the friction of the hull in the water to a minimum. Another important change will be the extension of automatic action as applied/to all of-the operations that go to make up the management of the modern steamship. Human agency will be superseded by a train of mechanism, and improved methods will be devised for steering, stopping and reversing the ship in fact, as Mr. Gause says: "It requires no stalwart imagination to foresee the entre control of the engines passing into the hands of the commander in the pilot house or on the bridge, by the simple intervention of a wire connecting an index and button at his side, with a small motor in the engine room that o mere quantity, the whole of the firework composition of what used to be an ordinary display could be packed into one of the largest shells used today. Now the fertility of the pyrotechnist is inexhaustible; every season adds fresh pictorial effects, new and beautiful tints, and novel and startling excursions into the realms of art, science, and literature, whence to draw material for pyrotechnic litustration. In the course of a recent display a reproduction was given of the beautiful and poetic Shakespearean tableau, "Where the bee sucks," a transformation piece, the "Seasons," was illustrated by a landscape with caim pool and surrounding trees, whose foliage and boughs successively depicted the verdure of spring, the glow of summer, the autumn fall of the leaf, and the brilliant whiteness of winter's snow. Gigantic wheels, screens of fire, trees, fountains, etc., illustrated the modern developments of the old favorite set piece and living fireworks were représented by "The Boxers." The Hornpipe," and "The Gockfight;" in the department of mechanical comic pieces was "The Marionette Skeletons." and in children's fireworks, "The Noah's Ark Procession of Animals."

A NEW MATERIAL FOR MAKING

Engineers have long regarded red lead as the one reliable substance for the mak-ing of joints, but a new material has ap-peared, which is said to be both less expensive and more efficient. While possessing all the good qualities of red lead as a steam, water and gas joint maker, it is more cleanly and more elastic, and sets more quickly under heat. Being close-grained, it is non-porous to steam, water and gas, and it requires so little time to harden that steam can be turned on the moment the joint is made. In remaking a joint the cement can be scraped off with a knife, and no chipping off with a chisel, as with red lead, is required. It is a plain putty, which can be carried in the hand or pocket, and if more is mixed than is needed for present use, what is left over can be worked up again at any future time.

Dr. G. E. Shuttleworth, writing in an English medical journal, takes a very sanguine view of the effect of systematic training of idiots. In reviewing the statistics of one of the largest training institutions for imbeciles in England, he shows that idiots have been improved, educated, and even cured; not one in a thousand has been entirely refractory to treatment; not one in a thousand has not been made more happy and healthy; more than 30 per cent, have been taught to conform to social and moral law, and of working like the third of a man; more than 40 per cent, have become capable of the ordinary transactions of life under triendly control, of understanding moral and social abstractions, of working like two-thirds of a man; and 25 to 30 per cent, have come nearer and nearer the standard of manhood, until some of them have defied the scrutiny of good judges when compared with ordinary young men and women. It was found, after systematic inquiry from year to year as to the career of pupils discharged on completion of their seven years' course of training, that 10 per cent, were or had been earning wages; by per cent, were remuneratively employed at home; and 3.5 per cent, were reported to be more or less useful to their friends at home, while another 22 per cent, were reported as of little or no use; 29 per cent, had gravitated to workhouses and lunatic asylums, and the remaining 8.5 per cent, had died.

A TYPEWRITER FOR BOOK-KEEPING. training of idiots. In reviewing the statistics of one of the largest training institu-A TYPEWRITER FOR BOOK-KEEPING.

A new typewriter is announced that differs from the standard instruments in being available for use on books of record, insurance policies, and other large documents of varying sizes. It will receive a book of any required width or thickness; will write a line long or short; thickness; will write a line long or short; and is so devised that the distance between lines may be scaled to suit the amount of space at hand or the fancy of the operator. While it is essentially a book-writing machine, it can be employed for every description of work done by the ordinary typewriter, and it is as effective on a single sheet of note paper as on a double-entry ledger. Its construction is simple and compact, and it weighs but ten pounds. It is provided with ribbons of various colors, any one of which can be instantly inserted or replaced. It has an excellent arrangement for manifolding; a platen of brass can be quickly substituted for the hard rubber platen used for single copies, and a hard, unyielding surface is thus provided for the type to strike against, and, as a consequence, the last copy of a dozen or fifteen duplicates is as distinct as the first.

A REVOLVING STUDIO Bad and variable lights are the bane of the photographer. For photography, studio with a morthern exposure, is always sought, so that the inconvenience of the sun can be avoided. When, however, the sun does not shine, the operator has to take advantage of every bit of light available, and often that is little enough. A movable studio that could be shifted with the sun has long been thought of as one way of lesscning the inconvenience and loss of time caused by insufficient light on dull days, and now M. Dujardin, the well-known French heliographer, has tried the experiment. His studio consists of a large glazed car mounted upon wheels. The wheels run around on a circular rail, like that of a turntable, and the car can thus be shifted around until the position most favorable for the pose of the object or person to be photographed is obtained. This enables the operator to dispense in a great measure with curtains, which, however, can be retained for use when the light is too intense.

The result of their efforts in this direceral public.

The result of their efforts in this direction have already made themselves felt in many ways, but in no more flattering manner could they have been manifested than in the amount of interest which has been shown in the race meeting, which forms so attractive a feature of the fair, during the past few weeks.

Hundreds of people of both rexes visited the track yesterday, both during the morning, when the horses were being exercised, and in the afternoon, and the stalls in which the cracker-jacks were stabled were constantly surrounded by a crowd of inquisitive visitors. As some of the fastest horses in the State were on exhibition in those same stalls, this is not to be wondered at. This not only includes the lightharness horses, but also the runners, which contingent has never before been so well represented in this city.

A cursory inspection of the stalls yesterday disclosed the fact that 178 horses were on the grounds, after the arrival of the Santa Ana brigade. Most of the stalls in the ranges facing the track are occupied by animals merely entered for exhibition, but in the first row are to be found Ed Connelly's string, consisting of Neilie W, irene Crocker, Thera and Rory O'More; J. Kelly's Ida B., and P. J. Mann's Altaao and Trumont.

In the upper range are Dave Bridses's and Trumont.

In the upper range are Dave Bridges's Ida Glenn, T. Raymon's Klamath, E. B. Gliford's Atto Rex and Ready G., and W. N. Cuddeback's Katte Emmett.

The stalls in the rear are occupied as follows: Block A—Ed. Ryan's pacers Humming and Four Aces; A. W. Buell's trotter, Flora; Charles Vananl's trotter, Thompson, and All Baba, a Derby entry. Block B—Charles Durfee's string, consisting of Osito, Etta Wilkes, Harvey Mc. Ben Butler, Gazelle, Silky, and the veteran McKinpey; C. A. Owen's runners, Three Cheers, Royal Flash and Capt. Al., and George Howson's runners, Flush Band and Polasky.

Block C—J. W. Donathan's string of runners, Alexis, Warrago, George Polhemus and Happy Band.

Block D—W. P. McIntosh's trotting colt, Mentone; C. O. Thornquest's pacer, Adjutant; San Bowey's runners, Lonnie B. and Fishers; Charles A. Brown's runners, Queen of Scots and Charlie A.; V. Lugo's sprinter, San Joaquin; Charles I. Thacker's Lewance and Lottie L., and C. H. McDonaid's speedy Santa Fe and Hueneme.

Block E—Pallett Bros.' sprinters, Hata and Lottie Collins; A Morine's Darby entry, Montalvo; J. Darnul's King Danviel; Al Patterson's Rob Roy, Charles A. Off's Zeus, G. W. Ford's trotting colt, Neernut, and J. E. Willett's famous black stallian, Sikwood, 2:07.

Block F—James Mack's speedy gelding Waldo J., and the Oakwood Park Stock Farm's string, consisting of W. Wood, Chbolo, W. W. Foote, Lilla C., and five others, who will be sent against time for records; George and Walter Maben's string, consisting of Juan Bernard, Red Head, Nomad, George Maben's seprinter, Vendome; E. R. four speedy youngsters, at least, will compete.

The second, race, which should prove one of the most interesting of the week, will be the Los Angeles Derby, for which six of the best three-year-dids in the State will struggle. They are Orizaba, Pelasky, Montalvo, Lottle L., Two Cheers and Charlie A., any one of whom is the peer of the winner of this event last year, in the opinion of experienced horsemen. No more exciting contest than that which may be expected in the third race, the 2:14 pacs, will, in all probability, be seen during the entire week, for hotter company than Lady H., Waldo J., Cibolo, Neilie I. and Del Norte could not be chosen.

THE INDUSTRIAL DISPLAY.

The exhibition in the pavilion opens this afternoon. The work of installation was being carried on rapidly all day yesterday and, as in the case of the horses, the building had many visitors. With the exception of a few small displays, the exhibition will be complete at noon today. Exhibits will be received at Agricultural Park up to noon when the entries close.

The pavilion has been beautifully decorated with streamers of bunting and the leaves of the fan palm, and will present a pretty appearance when all the displays are arranged. The agricultural and horticultural exhibits will be found on the main floor. Burbank is preparing a fine locality display in the center of the building. The gallery will be taken up by the fine arts, fancy work and photographic displays and the mechanical exhibit and the agricultural implements, wagons and carriages will be found in machinery hall.

The pavilion will close at 6 o'clock every day.

TWO GOOD GAMES AT ATHLETIC

Two very interesting games of baseball were played at Athletic Park yesterday. The first game was won by the Francis Wilsons by a score of 16 to 12. The features were the heavy hitting of both teams and the double play of Moore, Whaling and the double play of Moore, and Burge.

The second game was an interesting game from start to finish, and the Keatings put up a perfect game in the field, with the exception of Allen, who had two errors to his credit. The Keatings finally came out victorious over the Stars by a score of 7 to 4.

A TALK WITH VANDERBECK.

Count Vanderbeck, although he now owns the Detroit Baseball Club, still clings to Los Angeles, where he ran his first successful league club south of the Tehachepi. In conversation yesterday he said that he might do something in baseball on the Coast next year after the Eastern championship season, but negotiations had not taken such definite form as to warrant any statement. For next year he said he had twenty-two men on his reserve list from which to pick a team, that will be a winner. For pitchers he has Borchers, Pears, Gayle, Harper and Blue, with Jansen and Cody as catchers. For first basemen, Werden, Dooley, Earle and Harry Taylor were listed, with Glenalvin and Crook for second base, and Raymond and Crook for second base, and for the outfield, Freeman, Dungan, York, Campau and Cliff Carroll. Many of these names are familiar to Los Angeles "fans," and it should not be difficult to make up a first-class team from such timber. It is hardly probable that Glenalvin will captain the Detroits next season. For some reason, he failed to "catch on," and his unpopularity toward the last became so pronounced that he was a positive detriment to the game.

Mr. Vanderbeck also gave some interesting gossip about the members of the old Los Angeles team and California League. "Pop" McCauley was with Sioucity, while Hulen was with Minneapolis until August, playing great ball, until an unfortunate accident incapacitated him. "Good Boy" Jimmy Stafford sat on the bench for New York as emergency man during the entire season, drawing 330 a month, with but little to do. Tredway was with Brooklyn, while "Rasty" Wright was in the outfield for Grand Rapids. Jack Newman committed suicide in Chicago last winter, his death closely following the tragic end of Peter McNab; the details of which have be A TALK WITH VANDERBECK.

The Wheelmen. THE TRAINING LEAGUE'S REGULAR

SUNDAY RACE MEET.

The Wheelmen's Training League held

meets at Athletic Park yesterday morning, before a small but appreciative audience. The morning being cold and damp, no doubt kept many away, but the sun coming out about 10 o'clock made an almost perfect day for racing.

No remarkably fast time was made, although some pretty races were witnessed, the fastest time being made by W. A. Burke in a mile, flying start, against time, with pacemakers, the mile being run off in 2:15, the fastest over made on the track. Burke expressed himself as being able to do the distance in five seconds the distance in five better with faster pacemakers, but it was a very creditable performance, neverthe-a very creditable performance, nevertheless.

The programme opened with a quarter mile, open, in which were entered D. L. Burke, Tom McAleer, Fritz Lacy, Joe Long, and Schmidt. Lacy set a hot pace to the home stretch, where Long passed him with a spurt, taking first place, with Lacy second, and McAleer third; time 0.35 3-5.

Shortly, afterward Long, Schmidt and him with a spurt, taking first place, with Lacy second, and McAleer third; time 0:35 3-5.

Shortly afterward Long. Schmidt and D. L. Burke lined up for a half-mile, open. Long again showed his rear wheel to his opponents in a clever spurt on the stretch, winning the race in 1:19 1-5, with Schmidt second and "D. L." bringing up the rear.

W. Hatton next made his appearance for a shy at the two-mile track record, which he failed to touch, owing, partially, to the poor support given him by one or two of his pacemakers. His first mile was made in 2:27, and the second in 5:01.

The next event was a mile handicap, with McAleer and Ulbricht on the scratch, C. Magee had 125 yards; C. Miller 100 yards, and Holbrook and Schmidt 50 yards each. This was a very pretty race between the handicap men, the scratch men making no iparticular effort to win. Magee kept his lead for three-quarters, beling passed on the stretch by Holbrook and Schmidt, who both crossed the tape in a dead heat, with Magee right behind; time 2:30.

W. A. Burke, on a twenty-two-pound road wheel, made four circuits of the oval in 2:15, paced by Long, Lacy, Holbrook and Ulbricht.

The last event was a fivo-mile handicap, but just before the start, and with the consent of the riders, it was made a scratch race. The starters were Ulbricht, Lacy, Hatton and Schmidt, the latter dropping out at two miles Lacy and Hatton beat the chunky German in the spurt, finishing in the order named. The time by miles is as follows: 2:40, 5:18 3-5, 7:59, 10:49 2-5, 13:31 1-5.

ATHLETIC CLUB NOTES.

The moonlight excursion to Wilson's Peak next Saturday night by the Trampers' Annex and their friends, promises to be one of the joiliest events of the season. Quite a number have already signified their intention of making the trip, and from the present outlook, barring a rainstorm, there will, in all probability, be a sufficient number to fill two tally-hos. The start will be made from the clubrooms at 10 p.m. sharp, proceeding by the tally-ho to the foot of the trail, from which place the remainder of the journey will be made on foot. Starting on the return trip about noon, the party will arrive in Los Angeles at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

There is some talk of building a three-lap track at Athletic Park in the near future, which is designed to be one of the fastest in the world. A track of this kind would, no doubt, produce a number of record breakers from this vicinity. The contemplated change will not be made until after the Thanksgiving-day races.

A lively interest is being manifested in the coming handball tournament to begin November 5. The club players are in active preparation for the event. The local Turnverein will be represented by one, and possibly two, teams, while a couple of teams are expected from Pasadena. The tournament is open to all recognized amateurs, and is a handicap singles and doubles—all outside teams, of course, being scratch. Suitable first and second prises are to be awarded the winners. The entrance fee for teams is $1, and for singles, 50 cents.

Prof. Billy Gallagher, boxing instructor of the Athletic Club, will probably be matched with Joe Cotton for a glove contest for points to take place in the club gymnasium some time the first of next month.

The Spier twenty-five-mile handicap is at present the chief topic of interest among the local wheelmen. It is stated positively that the record-breaking Rambler team and the Los Angeles Wheelmen team, with chances about even.

A MEETING TO ORGANIZE A COUPLE OF TEAMS.

A MEETING TO ORGANIZE A COUPLE OF TEAMS.

There will be a meeting of football men and those interested in that game, at the rooms of the Los Angeles Athletic Club, No. 226 South Spring street, Thursday evening, October 18, for the purpose of organising first and second elevens, in order that Los Angeles may make a creditable showing at the game against Stanford University, which will come off during the Christmas bolidays.

It is very desirable that all men who are willing to play, or coach the team shall be on hand promptly that evening, and if there are any old college players in town, who can either play or coach, the leaders of the present movement hereby extends to them a very cordial invitation to lend their services, in order that Los Angeles may obtain the highest possible rank in football; and all men are invited to attend the meeting irrespective of whether they are, or are not members of the Los Angeles athletic Club.

Los Angeles has abundance of the best football material and the only thing needed to give her a first-class team is that the men shall come out and practice, and that the coaches will do their part in the matter.

Any communication in regard to this

Any communication in regard to this matter should be sent to C. W. Chase, at No. 103 Phillips Block, until October 18,

The following day Lyle won a race with Tuscarora, which placed him considerably on velvet in the deal. Mr. Baldwin wanted Ruby Payne for a brood mare.

A State ticycle detective association will be organised by Indiana wheelmen. During the season now drawing to a close hundreds of wheels have been stolen and shipped to Chicago and Western cities. It is in the recovery of stolen wheels that the detective agency hopes to accomplish the most work. It is proposed by the promoters of the association to perfect a similar organization in fillinois, and other Western States in which bicycle thleves have been unusually bold in their operations.

But, they are sort of pleasant tears.
The ones you call through years and years of pleasure sprinkled through with pain,
Like April sunshine mixed with rain.
Some skiese were dark and some were fair.
And joy came tangled up with care,
But after all the thongs and stings
The way was blessed with gracious things.

And then today—I had to laugh To think I'd seek her photograph. It seemed so queer. I don't know I've looked at it before, and then I thought about the Sunday she First gave that treasure rare to me, And how I kissed it then, and how I kiss it just as fondly now.

I wonder if two hearts in tune
Aren't always in their honeymoon,
And then I'd like to know if she's A-thinking any thoughts like these.
My love I'll hardly dare confess,
But I Just wonder it she'll guess lus depth within the hearty smack
Her cheek will feel when she comes back.

Sail on, sail on, O candidate!
Put on more canvas. Get a gait!
The mob down town, with all its fears,
With all its hopes of future beers,
Is looking at thee mighty straight.
We know what gang is in the deal,
What heelers we have had to heel,
Who had to pull each little rope.
How many bums we've got to treat,
How many bums we've got to treat,
And where we've got to case soap.
Fear not the roorback's sudden shock;
We'll find a way that game to block,
With rum, gin, whisky, beer and ale,
Such word thou canet not know as fail.
In spite of rock-mod-rye and roar,
In spite of marching clubs galore,
Go on, nor fear the enemy,
Our bets are two to one on thee.
Now hump thyself. Choke down thy fears,
The other chap will shed the tears.
We've got him licked already. See?

HERE is no fiction, no misrepresentation about the great gains in the Dress Goods Department; we have more than doubled the dress goods trade. Monday morning we make a half price on all the dress goods remnants in the house; we have taken out every dollars worth of remnants; they have been placed on the lace counter, and bright and early Monday morning the great rush will begin. We have had the greatest dress goods trade of years. All the remnants made this fall goes on the counter at half the original price. In the fall dress goods we purchased over 300 styles in 50c goods alone; all the remnants from this line of goods go to 25c a yard. We have been advertising 50 and 54 inch all-wool dress goods for $1 a yard; the remnants made from this great sale go to 50c a yard Monday. Don't come strag-gling into the store way after noon and say we never do as we say we will in an advertisement. We say to you now, the crowds will be great. The choicest goods in the lot will go out in a very short time; this will be the great sale of the year; it will be great from the very fact the goods will be found here that we are advertising; they will be sold for exactly one-half the original price. In this lot of remnants will be found a few pieces of goods suitable for capes; we will cut, fit and baste your capes free and sell you the remnants at half price; there will be only enough for a few capes. There is no question about it we are doing the largest dress goods trade we have done for years. The prices are made a strong inducement; we cut out all old goods and show the latest productions at the lowest prices; low prices, small profits. Thoroughly good desirable goods is the reason for the large increase in the trade. We are making low prices in the big Cloak Department. We have cut the profits fully one half to largely increase the cloak trade. Everything new in fur capes. We did not carry over a single fur garment; we show the latest styles in furs. Prince Albert coats, the new Golf Capes, the latest productions in plush coats and capes. We make special leaders in coats for $7, $8, $10, $12 and $15; this is where the heavy sales are made. We show good coats for $1, $2 and $5; they have never been matched in quality. They are far better than the price would indicate. If you intend buying a coat, cloak or a cape come in and see the goods offered at these special prices. They are much lower than the same class of goods have ever been sold for. We are selling goods cheap.

THE POLITICAL OUTLOOK.

BEIGHTER THAN EVER.

Three More Weeks Left the Candidates for Active Campaign-ing The Good Work

Scarcely more than three weeks from the present date the election will be at hand, and the voters will be called upon to express their choice at the polls for State, county and Congressional officers. During the intervening days the candidates are to make a final "ropud-up" and marshal their forces for a concluding review of the field. The two detachments of Republican spankers flave already covered the county very theroughly, and wherever they have gone enthusiasm has been aroused for the winning chuse, such as has sever before been known in this part of the State. The Democrata have not attempted to traverse winning chuso, such as has never before been known in this part of the State. The Democrata have not attempted to traverse the ground in the same thorough manner and their meetings have been few and but sparsely attended in the majority of instances, while their allies, the Populists, are content with moving about in "campmenting" style in the hope of gathering to their fold some dissatished recruits. The Republicans, with the federation of clubs added to their system of organization, have been able to do much good work. Harmony has prevailed in their committees, and altogether the result promises to be as atteractory as could be wished for. Unused to restraint, the purity of elections law has caused the Democrata some uneasiness, and the Republicans propose to watch their opponents very closely to see that they live up to the letter of the act.

In and around San Francisco the spirit of Republican activity is also marked, as it is indeed, throughout the State. About the work being done, the San Francisco Chronicie of Saturday says:

"The Republican State Central and County committees are preparing a series of massmeetings to be held in this city every night until the end of the campaign. The the work being done, the San Francisco Chromicle of Saturday says:

"The Republican State Central and County committees are preparing a series of massmeetinga to be held in this city every night until the end of the campalgn. The series will begin early next week, and nothing will be left undone to make them in every way successful. The speakers who will address the meetings will be among the best of local Republican orators. There will be music, and as a matter of course, a great deal of enthusiasm. The County Committee, is making arrangements for four such mass-meetings next week. The time and place for each will be announced in a few days.

"The State Central Committee has made arrangements for a big mass-meeting in Odd Fellows' Hall on the 22d inst. J. C. Daty, who is now out with Millard, will be one of the speakers. H. V. Morehouse will also deliver "an address. George Knight will speak in Union Hall on the 27th inst., and M. M. Estee will conclude the campaign in this city on November 3. Editorially, the same paper also says: "The campaigning tour of Mr. Estee, the Republican candidate for Goyernor, has been very much in the nature of a triumphal progress. Everywhere he has spoken he has been received and listened to by the were best class of California's citizens—the men, and women, too, who think out political matters for themselves, who study the situation and who can discriminate among candidates as well, and determine upon principles.
"Regarding the Democratic and Populist nominees little need be said any more than that one, them is a boy who will never be anything clas, so far as indications go, and the other an honest, slow-minded old man, who has found that there is more profit in being a banker than a granger. This State needs as its Governor a man of ablity and distinction, and a man in M. M. Estee that he stands every possible chance of being elected in November by a large plurality.
"California got out of the beaten road over two years ago and chased around after the Democratic will-of-the-wi Court of this State, escaped disbarment a few years ago only on a technicality. The few years ago only on a technicality. The Examiner's report is an absolute falsehood, published with the evident purpose of influencing voters against this upright and very able nominee. The complainant against the law firm of Luce, McDonald & Torrance, who desired the disharment of these lawyers, had the satisfaction of seeing the autorney exonerated by the court, and in addition to this, the complainant was compelled to pay all court costs. The case was decided upon its merits, and not upon any technicality. The attorneys of the complainant publish a statement to this effect over their signatures. The effect of this contemptible falsehood in the leading Democratic journal of the State will tend to increase Judge Torrance's vete in Southern California and elsewhere. The opinion prevails here that the Democracy is hard pushed for ammunition with which to fight its battles, and therefore deceends to the paltry methods of pothouse politicians by endeavoring to defame the characters of honorable candidates, Judge Torrance has served with distinction on the Superior Court bench of this county, and has an envisable record as a capable, painstaking jurist.

Another instance of campaign falsehood is the circulation of libelous stories concerning Judge Irving B. Dudley, Republican candidate for partisan purposes, that the better element of the Democracy of the county is becoming heartily opposed to the stactics of its own party. All manly voters are disgusted with the meanness of the efforts made to discredit the Republican candidates. They believe in a fair and above-board contest, to be fought on the vital issues which are so squarely before the people. Examiner's report is an absolute falsehood,

The fellows were well dressed, and they asked for some cigars, when they first came in. Leech gave them what they asked for, when one of them tendressed, and they asked for some chars, when they first came in. Leech gave them what they asked for, when one of them tendered him a $20 gold piece. The old man said that he was unable to change the coin and then the same man fished up a $10 piece. This the cigar-dealer was unable to change also, and he told the men so. At this the second man tendered a $5 piece, and, taking it, Leech started to procure the change. He took his pocket-book out first, but finding that he did not have erough silver in it he laid it down on the counter and went to the money drawer. The drawer was located about five feet away from where the old man had laid the purse, and as he turned his back for a moment the men grabbed the wallet and ran. Leech discoverd his loss at once, but when he reached the sidewalk and started in pursuit of the thieves the bold criminals were almost out of sight, and soon vanished down a side street. Leech reported his loss at the police station, but the officers failed to arrest the miscreants. The purse contained about $15. It is supposed that the larger coins tendered Leech by the men were counterfelt.

The first annual report of the Board of commissioners of the Building and Loan association of Culfornia—Maj. George A. laher of San F rancisco and William A. Fisher of San F rancisco and William A. Spalding of Los Angeles—is about to be issued from the State Printing Office, and The Times is under obligations to the Commissioners for an advance copy. The report comprises 1 tome 360 pages and embodies a mass of statistical information, which has a passil in interest for students of finance and ind istrial economy, and is of especial value to all concerned in building and loan associations.

One hundred and thirty-seven associations are represented, and for each is given a condensed statement, showing its assets and Habilities, its necepits and disbursements for the last fiscal year, its stock outstanding and the took and withdrawal values thereof, together with other points of interest from a building and loan standpoint. AN IMPORTANT INTELLEST.

The Commissioners think: "It is apparent from these figures that the building and loan plan of investment both popular and profitable bling them to acquire homes of their n, to be paid for out of their savings m month to month. Without doubt a ing and loan association organized of of the most beneficient institutions of time. It encourages thrift and perit effort on the part of wage earners ple with moderate incomes: it is factor in building up towns and ; it performs a valuable service for nwealth, by helping to estab ommonwealth, by helping to estab-ia well-to-do population in homes of own. People thus fixed in their at and having property interests to , make the best class of citizens," It is shown that building and loan as ns of the State stood the test of ancial panic of 1893 with credit. one of these institutions was force and nearly all of them continue tat a time when it was impossible to in money from the banks. It is urged this free movement of capital, maind by building and loan associations, much to do in relieving the tenof the money panic, and restoring dence to the business community. class of institutions which have atd such magnitude and importance in adustrial system, and which so greatly are people of small means and wage are, should be carefully guarded by state, under whose license they are ting. To this end full State superwas undertaken, under an act and the superistic and the state of the call for official supervision and they faithfully compiled with the law durse first year of its administration. The of the commission was commenced 1, 1893, and the first fiscal year law 31, 1894. Generally speaking, sections were found in a solvent courishing condition.

to his employees or whomsoever he could induce to purchase. By reason of the position in the Building and techh Associations, he managed to service loans on these properties up to the full amount of cost and a snug profit added, which reimbursed him, and these he turned the building and loan contract over to his purchaser for fulfillment. The result of his plunging methoris was eventual failure, when he abwooded, leaving many unsettled accounts. The evil of this system, so far as the building and loan associations were concerned, consisted in loaning too large amounts on these properties, and looking for payment to irresponsible parties. In a number of cases these contracts were defaulted by parties purchasing, and the associations were obliged to take the properties by foreclosure or compromise. They will be thus obliged to stand the loss of idle, or partially idle, capital until they can dispose of the properties in question, and must then suffer a probable shrinkage in values.

"The lessons which all of the associations should learn from this are: First, not to allow a member of the board of directors to systematically further his individual schemes at the risk of the association; second, to scrutinize each proposed loan carefully, and see that a conservative estimate is placed upon the property offered; third, to consider carefully the standing and character of each applicant for a loan."

EXAMINATIONS AND THEIR COST.

After outlining their system of examinations, and giving the forms of blanks which secretaries are required to fill out and file under oath, the Commissioners say:

"We have undeavored to make these examinations thorough and searching, and we believe that, with the system of reports and verifications above outlined, it would be very difficult for a secretary to ports and verifications above outlined, it would be very difficult for a secretary to misrepresent the status of his association. A forced balance in the books or in the statements would be promptly disclosed. There would be no way to boister up a really insolvent association and make it appear sound without the most outrageous forgeries and false entries, which would probably be self-evident. Nevertheless, it must be conceded that our examinations do not amount to a compete experting of the secretary's books. It is impossible for us to follow his work all through, and check every entry and posting, compare disbursements with vouchers, or call in the pass-books and check the receipts with thom. For this reason we have advised directors not to depend upon our examinations to take the place of the regular expert work which is usually done under the supervision of the Auditing Committee. Such examinations should be continued with unabated vigilance, to prove the correctness and housety of the secretary's work. We are then able to pass upon the solvency of the 'association and upon its methods of doir, business.'

styn shows that two assessments were lev-ed upon stock of building and loan asso-ciations, one to cover the expenses for seven months of 1893 and one for the year 1894. The sums realized were:

From assessment of 1893......$3637.90 From assessment of 1894...... 6084.53

Leaving unexpended for 1894....$3559.23 Leaving unexpended for 1894....$3559.22

It should be borne in mind that the expense of maintaining the commission is not placed upon the taxpayers of the State, but is borne in mind that the building and loan associations. The only expense imposed upon the State is for the printing of blanks and reports.

After disposing of matters of detail concerning the work of the commission the report takes up statistics of the building and Loan associations and analyzes them thoroughly.

The plans of the three classes of associations—locals, nationals and co-operative banks—are succinctly set forth, and the Commissioners pay their respects to a fourth class as follows:

ASSOCIATIONS UNCLASSIFIED AND NOT SUPERVISED.

(In this category appears to be embraced

ASSOCIATIONS UNCLASSIFIED AND NOT SUPERVISED.

(In this category appears to be embraced the California Guarantee Investment Company of No. 328 Montgomery street, San Francisco—H. M. A. Miller, president; John W. Butler, secretary—an institution with a plan intricate and cunning enough to make possible "the perpetration of extensive injustice."—Ed. Times.)

"There is still another kind of association which incorporates in its plan of operations the features of these co-operative banks and others as well, such as endowments, life insurance, etc.

"These associations have thus far escaped the supervision of any State commission, inasmuch as their systems cannot be classified under the building and loan plan, or the insurance plan, or the savings bank plan. Yet it is very certain that these unclassifiable associations may require official supervision in the interest of the public as much as any. Their plans being intricate, and their management vested in a set of officers lover whom the subscribers and members exercise little or no supervision or control, make it possible for the perpetration of extensive injustice. These associations are operated under the associations are operated under the sanction of the State, being regularly incorporated, and there is no doubt that the State has a moral responsibility for their good conduct.

"As a general rule, those organizations which are formed on a plan especially designed to clear them from official inspection are the ones that most need supervision. We recommend, therefore, that the scope of one or all of the existing commissions be so broadened as to allow them to take cognizance of these hitherto unclassified mutual associations."

CAPITALIZATION AND STOCK. The capitalization of building and loan associations, by classes is given as fol-

An interesting comparison is then instituted between the returns, as given in this report, and these presented by the report of the Bank Commissioners in 1892. The summing up of this table gives the following percentages of gain in total assets and ilabilities for the past two years: Locals 30.60 per cent.
Nationals 49.54 per cent.
Co-operative banks 40.23 per cent.

FROM CONCRETE TO ABSTRACT.

After disposing of this rather formidable array of figures, the Commissioners discuss at some length the building and ioan plan in the abstract, speaking a good word for the simple system, as first instituted, and commending its equitability. They deprecate mildly the tendency of many modern "improvements," which depart from the thorough mutuality of the old scheme. The unfairness of a pro rata division of all profits between borrowers and non-borrowers, silke in associations where premiums are exacted is touched upon, and the following suggestion is where premiums are exacted is touched upon, and the following suggestion is made:

"A plan which seems to meet the exigency has been adopted by several associations in this State. These associations is the state. These associations is the state. These associations is the state of the state, one of which is for intending borrowers, the other for intending investors. The investors' stock commands a fixed-rate of interest, say 7 per cent. per amum; and has no further participation in the profits of the ussociation. After allowing this interest to the investors, the balance of the profit is divided entirely among the borrowers' stock, in preportion to investment. With proper regulations for obliging all holders of borrowers' stock to become borrowers, or surrender their stock at withdrawal value after a certain date, this equalizes matters. Investors receive a fair rate of interest on their money, and no more, while the borrowers get back an equitable share of the profits which they have contributed to the association.

"Tois plan, with varying modifications, which they are to the sociation. "This plan, with varying modifications, seems to be coming into vogue as a substitute for other equalizing devices, which seem more arbitrary and not seasily executed. It is worthy a careful study on the part of those organizing new associations."

VARIOUS PREMIUM PLANS. Premiums are next discussed, and the gist of the Commissioners' opinions may

Premiums are next discussed, and the gist of the Commissioners' opinions may be epitomized as follows:

Where gross premiums are in vogue and any portion of premium is subject to rebate, they should be carried in an unearned premium account, and not apportioned to shares like accrued profits.

The plan of installment premiums is recommended as the most desirable and the most satisfactory in its operation, both to associations and borrowers.

But premiums, after all, are only an increase of the rate of interest under another name. The tendency of the times is undoubtedly toward the elimination of all premiums, and a corresponding increase in rates of interest.

On the subject of premium stock the report says:

"In some of the nationals and co-opera-

On the subject of premium stock the report says:

"In some of the nationals and co-operative banks, the plan of issuing premium stock is in vogue. If a member borrows on 100 shares of stock he is required to take out an additional 100 shares, the latter of which is known as premium stock. He is then required to pay dues on 200 shares until maturity of the loan, as well He is then required to pay dues on 200 shares until maturity of the loan, as well as the agreed interest on amount borrowed. At maturity the premium stock is not liquidated, but is covered into the profits of the association. This amounts, on the part of the borrower, to the payment of a premium of 100 per cent. on the amount of loan. Of course the 100 per cent., is not taken out of the loan at the outset, as there would then be no loan; but it is paid in annual installments, extending through the life of the loan, and ht maturity the premium stock, which is surrendered by the borrower, exactly equals the amount of borrowing stock—i.e., the amount borrowed. This is 100 per cent. on the loan."

The premium plans in vogue are sumarized as follows:

Four plans

It may be stated that gross premiums in the local associations range generally from 10 to 25 per cent. of the amount of loan, or face value of stock borrowed upon. In one instance a premium of 60 per cent. is secured, this amount being added to the face of the loan. The installment premiums average about 30 per cent, being divided into ten equal payments of 3 per cent.

The plan of establishing a reserve fund as an equalizer of profits between various series where an association uses borrowed capital, and to provide a contingency fund against gossible losses, is discussed and

There are in use among the associations of this State no less than ten separate rules or plans for distribution of profits, which are briefly stated as follows: Dexter Association
Partnership
Wrigley
Second dividend
Share and share alike

Average age on average in months. Investment. 123.90 11.82
Sharea, $200 ... 123.90 11.82
Sharea, $100 ... 76.33 9.96
Thus it appears that the shares of $200 have held the advantage, maturing at less than double the age of $100 shares, and realizing a larger percentage of profit on the investment.

After deducting from the total cancellations the shares matured, some interesting calculations are introduced to show the ireatment of shares withdrawn. It appears that on shares thus retired before maturity, the local associations refunded the dues paid in, plus 22.59 per cent. of the profits. The nationals refunded the amounts paid into the loan fund plus 17.84 per cent. of the profits. The co-operative banks refunded, in one case, the amount of dues paid in, and in another case the amount paid into the loan fund, both giving, besides, 8.35 per cent. of the profits.

SURRENDER VALUE OF STOCK.

SURRENDER VALUE OF STOCK.

A computation based upon all surrender values, as reported, shows that the local associations, it all stock were cashed in, would pay back the dues; plus 59.11 per cent. of apportioned earnings. In a similar contingency, the national associations would refund the amounts paid into the loan fund, plus 17.27 per cent. of profits. The co-operative banks would refund, in one instance, the full dues, and in one the amount paid into the loan fund, both plus 52.58 per cent. of the profits.

The Commissioners show that the maximum rate of fines allowed by the law of 1891 is excessive, allowing the associations to charge on delinquencies a penalty equal to 120 per cent. per year in the average use of money withheld. They recommend that the law be amended so as to allow a maximum charge of 2 per cent. on monthly balances delinquent, instead of 10 per cent. For the rest of the recommendations to associations as to fines are terse and to the point: First, impose moderate fines; second, enforce them.

LOANS AND SECURITIES. SURRENDER VALUE OF STOCK.

LOANS AND SECURITIES. A careful analysis of statistics under this ead shows that all associations hold securities considerably in excess of amounts loaned. The several classes have loaned on their securities:

Loans paid- New loans-| Description | Description |

AN AMENDMENT SUGGESTED. "Sec. 638 of the law of 1891 should be amended so as to fix the time of mortgages to be received by building and loan associations, as follows: Such mortgages shall be payable on or before nine years from date. All payments on shares, and such portions of profits as the by-laws or board of directors may provide to be paid to withdrawing members, shall be construed as partial payments on the note or other obligation given by the borrower, in the event that the borrower elects to discharge his obligation before maturity. Interest shall be payable on the full amount of the mortgage until paid. For the purposes of taxation, the present worth of a mortgage (face of mortgage loss the last determined withdrawal value and all subsequent payments as dues on the stock mended so as to fix the time of mortgage subsequent payments as dues on the stock pledged) shall constitute the assessable value of said mortgage."

value of said mortgage."

INTEREST AND PREMIUM RECEIPTS.

A calculation based on the average amount loaned for the year and the gross receipts for interest shows the following average rates received by the several classes:

"It may be stated, however, by way of estimate, that the premiums, gross and installment together, counting the average life of loans, would amount to an increase of about 3 per cent. per annum in the rates of interest paid by the borrower. As a matter of fact, the premiums collected by locals during the rear, as shown by these statements, amount to 2.88 per cent. on the average amount loaned out.

"With the nationals and co-operative banks, however, as their premiums are all on the installment plan, we can calculate the percentage of premiums more estisfactorily.

the percentage of premiums move factorily.

"The nationals report premiums collected during the year, $68,076.24. This, on the average amount loaned out for the year as ascertained above, would make the percentage of premium collected 6.11 per cent.

"The co-operative banks report pramiums collected during the year, $50,059.33. This, on the average amount loaned out for the year ($922,812.50,) would make the percentage of premiums collected 5.42 per cent.

percharage of premiums collected 5.42 percent.

"As we have explained elsewhere, the difference between interest and premium is only nominal. The premium, in effect, is an augmentation of the rate of interest under another name. Hence, if we would accurately state the cost of the money to the borrower, we must combine the annual rate which he pays as interest and the annual rate which he pays as gremium. Recurring to the foregoing calculations, we may sum them up in effect as follows:

"An average share of stock in national associations has paid in dues (including expense fund) $13.60, and is credited with earnings, 83 cents.

"An average share of stock in co-operative banks has run 30.7 months, has paid in dues $18.43, and is credited with earnings, 57 cents."

To this is added the following note:

"It should be borne in mind that from the standpoint of stockholders the profits reported by national associations and those doing business on the national plan are, in every instance, gross profits. That is, a stockholder must deduct from the stross profits in his favor the amount which he has contributed to the expense fund, in order to ascertain his net profit on the transaction. In this case, deducting the average contribution to the expense fund, the net profit remaining to the average share of stock in nationals is 83 conts, instead of $1.88."

In the matter of expenses, the following interesting tables are given:

The succeeding ten pages of the report are devoted to methods of account keeping, canvassing the various books that should be kept, and suggesting a system of closing the ledger to thoroughly analyze the business and make a permanent record of the analysis. This is a subject to be studied by secretaries in full details, and cannot well be epitomized here.

The concluding portions of the report discuss matters of so much import that they are given in full:

"To this end the work of the Committee on Loans ought to be done with the timost thoroughness. The prosperity of the association is bound up in the safety of its loans, and this principal avenue of outgo should be watched especially by every member of the committee. The law of 1893 places the responsibility where it belongs, by requiring the secretary to keep a written record of loans, which shall specify in each case the appraised value of land and improvements, and to this appraisement the members of the committee making it must subscribe their names. No committeeman should sign this record without first satisfying himself by direct investigation that the representations No committeeman should sign this without first satisfying himself by investigation that the represent therein made are correct.

MAKING LOANS.

MAKING LOANS.

"There is a tendency on the part of some associations, we think, to make loans on too narrow a margin of security. While it may be allowable under the building and loan plan to advance more on the appraised value of the property than is considered safe by the banks, still there is a conservative line which should not be overstepped. This line may be drawn anywhere between 60 and 70 per cent. of the valuation.

where between 60 and 70 per cent. of the valuation.

"Not only the character of the property, but the standing and business prospects of the borrower, should always be taken into consideration. The personal equation cuts a large figure in the risk.

"While discussing this subject, we may remark intedentally that small loans, well remark intedentally that small loans, well resident for building and loan associations. In every instance where we have found an association embarrassed it has been through being obliged to take property in satisfaction of large loans.

AUDITING ACCOUNTS.

"Another point to be carefully watched "Another point to be carefully watched by the directors is the work usually performed by the Auditing Committee. An expense that is amply justified under every circumstance is the employment of an expert accountant to carefully go over all of the secretary's work for the very, and see that no mistakes have been made in entries, computations, or postings; to call in all the pass-books and see that they check with the dues register or stock-holders' ledger; and to verify every outgo by its proper voucher. When the expart reports that he has thus examined the secretary's work and has found it correct, and the Auditing Committee have made a personal examination, and have applied the usual tests by calculating dues paid in, etc., it is safe for them to present a favorable report. If they do not employ an expert, then they should themselves perform the work above mentioned. If they fall to do this, but merely assume that serything is right after a superficial giance at the books, their report is worse than useless; in fact, the very laxity of to see how easy it would be to deceive them.

"Aside from his duties as director, in which he is accountable like other members of the board, there are special obligations resting upon the president. An Auditing Committee may see that the affairs of the association's business, as it progresses, that there will be no chance for irregularities, report dent to keep such a close walch over the association's business, as it progresses, that there will be no chance for irregularities to occur. The president should not sign warrants on the treasurer without satisfying himself in every instance that the money is justly due, and that it is thereafter properly applied. An instance came to our attention during the past year in which an association had been defrauded of several thousand dollars through a lax method of signing warrants by the president. Fortunately the fraud was discovered in time to protect the association, and the loss was made good.
"A president should be familiar with the secretary's books, and should inspect them often enough to know that all the money called for by the cash balance is regularly deposited with the treasurer. In one of our examinations we discovered the secretary had appropriated nearly $2000 of the association's money, carrying it on his books as a cash balance. It the president had not taken the pains to examine the books, he might readily have seen that the secretary had no business to retain so large an amount in his posts as cash balance. It the president had not taken the pains to examine the books, he might readily have seen that the carefully watched over the affairs of the association, and that the Auditing Committee had examined the secretary's accounts a short in time before, and had found everything satisfactory. In this instance the deficit was made good through the interference and rigid insistence of the commission.

was made good through the interference and rigid insistence of the commission.

DEBT.

"Another point upon which we wish to admonth the management of building and han associations is the matter of dobt. While it is generally considered allowable for an association to borrow money on bills payable or an overdraft, to supply the demand for ioans, and while the margin which usually obtains between the borrowing rate and the lending rate holds a tempting inducement of proft, there is still a fine of safety boyond which an association should not go, just as there is in any business. There is always danger of an association becoming so deeply involved on short-time paper that it may be embarrassed in case of a sudden financial stringency, such as the country passed through in 1893. It is better to forego the opportunity to unduly extend the business and make, a speculative profit, than take chances of such embarrassment. We would say that an association is not justified in incurring an outside indebtedness, payable on demand or on short time, of more than might be discharged by its regular income if three months. Even then, under pressure, it would be obliged to discontinue loans and postpone withdrawals for hast period, in order to meet its outside obligations, which might be a serious inconvenience to members, and would undoubtedry injure the good name of the association. If only half of the revenues of the association were applied to its indebtedness ask months would be required for it to pay up. That is long enough, under any circumstances. It would be bester, indeed, to lean to the side of censervatism, and not incur outside indebtedness at all. If properly managed, an association can make money fast enough on its ewn capital to satisfy every investor.

livery of all mecessary papers before completing the loan.

SALARIES AND EXPENSES.

"In the matter of salaries and operating expenses, it is to the credit of building and loan associations that they have kept them down to a very economical basis in most cases. Yet we believe that the secretary, or other executive officer, should be paid fairly well for the duties and responsibilities which he incurs. He will not then be tempted to slight his work, or look for irragular perquisites, on the ground that he is not getting enough to give him a living. It is a sound maxim to pay well for good services, and then demand what is paid for.

"As to paying directors and other officers, that is a matter which should largely depend upon the size of the association and the suites required. A large association may demand the constant attention of several officers, and in that case, should pay them on the same basis as we have advocated in the payment of secretaries. Perhaps the expense thus incurred may not be any greater in proportion to the volume of business transacted than a modest salary to one man in a small company. As a general rule, associations in their earlier years cannot afford to pay large surfaces. They should not attempt to pay anything to their board of directors mull such time as the volume of business justifies it. The greatest economy should also be exercised in the matter of fees to agents and attorneys, so that the profits of new business, be not thus absorbed.

"The line of percentages running through our synopais of reports showing percentage of salaries to total receipts in something of a criterion. The average payment for salaries of all associations is something of a criterion. The average payment for salaries of all associations is something of a criterion of a salaries of all associations is something of a criterion of the secretary who is paid less than this percentage on the total business of his association, is paid less than the average. As a general proposition, associations doing a comparativ agent, making icas, if any, bayable to the association, as its interests may appear.

"The greatest care should be exercised in the matter of paying taxes, to see that none of the mortgaged properties go delinquent and suffer a cloud on the citic. It is necessary to see that none of the mortgaged properties go delinquent and suffer a cloud on the citic. It is necessary to see that not only the mortgage tax is paid, but also, if there should be a balance of assessment over the deduction for the mortgage, that this is paid as well.

"Some associations employ an expansive form of mortgage, which makes the mortgaged property security for the loan first made, and any subsequent loans, up to a fixed limit. When an additional lean its made, only a promissory note for the new amount is exacted. It is rulable with some associations to place dain new note on record with the County Recarder, as notice to the world that the property is held for more than the face of the first lean. This has the sanction of good legal authority, but we think it a better plan, though involving some extra trouble and expense, to cancel the first instrument and execute a new note or mortgage for the entire amount of the expanded ioan."

Following this comes a list of building and loan literature, available for those who desire to inform themselves fully on the history, theory, precice and law of building and loan associations.

An Outbreak Between the Prohibi-tionist and Populist Wings A State Ticket Also

SAN BERNARDINO, Oct. 13.—(Special Correspondence.) The closing work of the Woman's Non-partisan County Political Convention yesterday was not without interest. The final nominations developed rather more friction between the W.C.T.U. or Prohibition, and the Populist members. This manifested itself after the completion of the county ticket, and the members wandered off into State politics. Because of the lateness of the hour but two members of the State ticket were selected. The nominees for the rest of the county ticket were as follows:

For Assessor, S. H. Barrett of Highlands, Prohibitionist, was nominated by a vote of 43 to 21 for S. H. Johnson, Populist, of San Bernardimo.

a vote of 43 to 21 for S. H. Johnson, Populist, of Sam Bernardimo.

For Superintendent of Schools, Miss Maggie Mogean of Rialto, Populist-Democrat-Prohibitionist, was nominated by acclamation. As the vote was being taken a delegate rose and endeavored to make a nomination, but was not observed by the chairman, and a tangle followed, but was soon dropped.

For Public Administrator, Dr. Colliver of San Bernardino, Republican; A. M. Wright of Rialto, Prohibitionist, and Dr. R. Stephens of Highlands, Populist, were named, the isster receiving the nomination, securing 46 votes.

The convention being in good running order, decided to make a State ticket. French and Webster were named, and personalities cropped out instanter. The chairman had to rap vigorously to secure order. French was declared the choice of the convention by a vote of 50 to 15 for Webster. The nomination for State Superintendent of Instruction was not secured without another squabble with a little personal feeling thrown in. Prof. N. A. Richardson, of this city, the Populist nominee, was named by Mrs. Henry Good-cell, Jr., amid applause, and R. S. Burns, Prohibitionist, was also placed in nomination. Then a discussion arose as to Richardson's religious belief, he being charged with entertaining athesitic views. Mrs. Marchaud recited "Abou Ben Adhem" in defense of Richardson, in the warmth of the struggle it, was suggested that the convention did not assemble to discuss religion, and that the business be proceeded with. The vote of the delegates resulted in Burns receiving 39 votes and Richardson 19. Contrary to the custom prevailing during the convention, the defeated candidate, Richardson, took the platform and endeavored to explain his position in the field of religion.

After passing the usual vote of thanks, the convention adjourned sine die. Although there were many slips of parlismentary usage in matters of minor importance, the women proved conclusively that they are capable of running a convention.

REDLANDS.

Redards had her big day of the present campaign on Friday, when United Stries Senator George C. Perkins and State Senator T. L. Ford were here. The distinguished visitors arrived via the Santa Fe at noon and were secorted to the Windsor Hotel by the Rediands Republican Club. After luncheon a short informal reception was had, and then the party was taken to Canyon Crest Park and other points of interest by George W. Meade. The evening trains brought in large delegations from neighboring cities and villages, and special trains were in waiting to convey them to their homes, after the meeting. At 6:40 the Colton delegation arrived via the Southern Pacific 150 strong, under the leadership of Dr. Hutchinson and escort of the Colton Band. There were nearly three hundred from San Bernardino, a score from Mentone and as many from Highland, arriving via the Santa Fe at 7.0° clock, accompanied by the Ontario Band. A procession was formed, the Redlands Band joising and the visitors and many of the citizens joined in the march to the Academy of Music. The hall was decorated with the American fiag and bruning and portraits of several distinguished Republicans were displayed.

The Ontario Band furnished the opening overture, and H. H. Sinclair introduced I. N. Hoag as chairman of the evening. A large list of vice-presidents was named and the gentlemen took seats upon the stage. A noyel feature was then introduced by the singing of "America," by the ex-trikers recently United States prisoners at San Bernardino.

Chairman Hoag then reviewed the life of Senator Perkins to the present time and presented him to the audience. The hall, fairly well filled, then re-echoed with applicase of greeting as Senator Perkins stepped to the front. The Senator Perkins to the marvelous growth toward homelike beauty. The runaway came one day early this week, occurring on Friday instead of Saturday. The high-strung team of C. E. French proved too spirited for him and dumped him and load out on Water street. The horses then took a spin about town, starting the horse of Mrs. C. E. Stewart. which upset and smashed her buggy, arf also the horse of Mrs. Ewald, the latter doing little damage. The French team was finally captured, the horses being tired out and the wagon almost demolished. Mr. French was bruised somewhat, but not seriously. THE RUNAWAY.

ONTARIO

ONTARIO.

ONTARIO, Oct. 13.—(Special Correspondence.) An important transfer of real estate took place Saturday morning, John Oaborn purchasing the Tyson lot, corner of A street and Euclid avenue. The purchase price was $7900. This lot was bought with others in the block, extending from Euclid avenue to Laurel avenue on A street. by a syndicate some time since. It was the purpose of this syndicate to erect a fine building to cever the entire block, and thus concentrate the more important business enterprises on A street.

Only a small payment was made on each lot purchased, and many looked on the proposition as a sort of boom speculation. Mr. Osborn's purchase of this lot, which is really the key to the entire situation, is a practical guarantee of the carrying out of the syndicate's plans. Mr. Osborn will erect on his lot a handsome block to be cocupled by a national bank, and the syndicate will build from his lot on to Laurel avenue. The plans as originally drawn will be somewhat modified.

The establishment by the Town Trustees of fire limits in the town caught one prospective builder in an awkward predicament. The gentleman had just bought the lot adjoining the new Odd Fellows' Block, and had purchased lumber and let the contract for a wooden building to be erected on it. As active work had not been begun, the Trustees held that he was amenable to the new law, and a brick block will probably be the result.

An important meeting of the San Antonio Water Company will be held on Tuesday next. Plans to increase the water supply of the colony will be decided on.

The "unterrified" held forth in the Workmen's Hall on Saturday evening. Hon. W. H. Alford and F. P. Meserve were the speakers.

A Pleasant Reception-Young Bap-was tyrned in, and a run made to the city limits on E street, when it was discovered that the fire was a mile beyond the reach of pressure water. The cottage owned by C. Cohn, and its contents, occupied by C. Cohn, and its contents, occupied by Charles Ferguson and family, went up in fiames. There was but little value attached to it.

The next alarm was from box No. 14, a little after 9 o'clock last night; and it too, was beyond the reach of the fire company, on Mill street, beyond 1 street. It was a small residence belonging to Mrs. John Wallace, and was set after by the explosion of a gasoline stove. Nothing was saved, and the loss is about $1400, partly insured. Mrs. Wallace was prostrated by fright, and at one time was for more than ten minutes unconscious and without pulse, but medical aid was secured in time to bring her out of her precarious condition.

CITY BOND ELECTION.

THE PROPOSITIONS TO BE SUB-MITTED TO THE VOTERS.

Public Sentiment on the School Bonds - Some Explanations in Regard to the Legal Points.

The expected submission of a number of ond propositions to the voters of the city in the near future is attracting much at-tention. As has been heretofore indicated, it is generally acknowledged the public has little or no confidence in a majority of the present Board of Education, and unless there is positive assurance that this board can in no way have anything to do with the handling of the funds raised it is con-ceded the bonds for school purposes will not carry. It seems more than probable, however, that the electors of the city will however, that the electors of the city will have such assurance when the question is submitted to them.

The city election will be held on Monday, December 3, and it is stated to be the unanimous intention of the Council not to call the bond election until thereafter, in order that the question of bond issue may not be in any manner influenced by or entangled in politics. If held at that time a considerable expense can be saved in the putting in of booths and in the arrangements of other election paraphernalia. It will be the duty of the Council at the next regular meeting after the election to canvass the vote and declare the result. If the election is held at the time for which it is stated to be the intention of the City Council to hold it, the canvass will occur not earlier than Monday, December 10. Should the Council proceed immediately on that day its first duty will be to advertise for bildeers for such of the bonds as are necessary to be sold before work can be commenced.

Shoes.

It's quite a trick to write a convincing advertisement about shoes nowadays. All dealers claim so much and most of them too much for the discriminating reader to believe, that all we want you to do is to look at our shoe stock. Such imperial makers as John Foster, Wright & Peters, Dugan & Hudson and J. and T. Cousins are the kind of bush." Neither does our shoes we carry, and should quite as low, if not a little lower, than you will in the "red flag" shops. We quote as special for Monday

Wright & Peters $6 shoe, in lace or but-ton, cloth or kid top, all styles toe and lasts, at $4.

Linens.

Nowhere through the whole great range of dry goods price possibilities has the tariff cut a greater figure than in linens, and our stocks of the flaxen fabric were never more complete in all details than they are today. Every novelty and every staple from the linen quisite designs of our own loom that has been offered at a little less than the curand children are a special rent market rates are laid feature of the Millinery down here at your call. For this week we shall offer

If you would be successful and overcome sorrow and danger.

The nature of Mme. de Camor's business has from a scientific standpoint undergone investigation from such men as John Ruskin and Aifred Russell Wallace of the Society of Psychical Research, and been prenounced wonderful.

Having stood the test of metropolitan criticisms, the public are invited to cail upon the Madame and she will prove to the most sceptical that her powers are marvelous.

All that she claims she will do, and for the next ten days will present all who have a sitting with a talismanic charm such as was used by the ancient Egyptians to restore losi love, bring good luck; remove evil influence; unite the sonarsted and make home happy. Do not fail to call early, as I have only a limited number of these charms left, therefore it would be advisable to call before they are exhausted.

The Madame has a wonderful power over disease, and will cure the sick who call in the next ten days free of charge.

The Madame would call the public's attention to the fact that she has given during her short stay in Los Angeles, over 2000 sittings, thus verifying the ancient saying "that by their fruits, ye shall know them," and her bast work is her future reference. She will give you advice on business, speculation, investments, love, courtship, marriage, will tell you if the one you love is true or false; locates mines and hidden treasures; interprets dreams and never fails to lift the dark veil of futurity, and unfold the panorama of your future in a clear and concise manner. Satisfactory readings by mail by inclosing fee with stamp, date of birth and lock of hair. Fees, ladies, $1, and gentlemen $2.
